DIPLOMACY DID IT.

The Samoan Bugaboo About Settled.

The Berlin Conference Agreed on All Essentials.

Old Malietoa Will Probably Again Be King.

Germany Makes No Mention of the Obnoxious Klein--Bismarck as the Great Conceder--Delighted Delegates.

By Telegraph to The Times.

BERLIN, May 18.—[Copyright, 1889, by the New York Associated Press.] The first session of the Samoan conference was held yesterday. The meeting was called to order shortly after 2 o'clock by Herbert Bismarck, who presides at all meetings in accordance with the established custom that highest representative of the government of the country in which the conference is held shall preside. The proceedings were almost entirely formal. They consisted chiefly in listening to reports of the various sub-committees which have been holding daily sessions ever since the conference met. At these meetings the real work of the conference has been transacted, and as nearly as can be learned the American Commissioners have succeeded in carrying every important point they set out to obtain. Indeed, so prevalent is this feeling in Berlin that the Berlin press and other influential papers in Germany complain of the success of the Americans.

THE WORK ALMOST COMPLETED.

While the greatest secrecy in regard to the proceedings is maintained, and heretofore nothing much beyond the fact that meetings had been held was known, it can now be stated that, excepting the question of indemnity for the German sailors killed and beheaded by the Samoans, and one or two other minor points, the work of the commission is over. It is thought the restoration of Malietoa to power is assured, and that the plan for a tripartite government in Samoa, for which the American Commissioners contended against the German plan for one representative selected by the three powers, will surely be put into effect. It is also more than likely that the Commission has decided in favor of the absolute independence of Samoa as soon as the people there demonstrate their ability to go alone. The indemnity question is yet to come up. It may prolong the meetings some weeks, but this is believed to be the only point on which there is likely to be a contest.

KLEIN'S CASE NOT TOUCHED.

The question of Klein's connection with the affair in which the German sailors were killed, has never come up, nor is there any likelihood of its doing so. Neither will the commission hear testimony of any kind.

During the past meetings of the conference [illegible] the only points of [illegible] have been between the German and American commissioners, the attitude of the English members being neutral. Their influence has generally been cast with a view to settling the question as expeditiously as possible. They have, however, been strongly in favor of having a Protestant for King of Samoa, which is thought to indicate their preference for Malietoa, who was trained in an English Protestant college.

The most important work of the conference has been done by what is known as the working committee, consisting of Dr. Kranel, Assistant Secretary of State for Germany, and Messrs. Scott and Bates, and to which Crowe and Phelps were added as advisors, the first named on account of his long experience in British commercial affairs, and the last named because of his long experience in America with the tariff and of his experience in establishing a government out of the discordant elements in Louisiana. The duty of this committee has been the preparation of material for the general conference. In this class was a plan to settle disputes concerning land titles in Samoa. The German, French and American inhabitants of Samoa have been acquiring land so fast in Apia that little remains for the natives, and it is claimed that their titles in many instances are doubtful, as the land was given to them by irresponsible natives in exchange for liquor and trifles. This committee was also entrusted with the work of settling the form of government at Apia.

THE PLAN AGREED UPON.

It is rumored that the plan agreed upon is that America, Germany and England shall each appoint representatives, and that three more members of a board of control shall be chosen by the rate-payers. No liquor shall be sold to natives, although foreigners can have such stores as they choose in their private houses. Firearms are only to be sold to the Government, and then only under certain restrictions which prevent their use except for keeping the peace. A plan for giving the Samoans revenue has also been devised, which provides for the reëstablishment of their right to impose import and export duties, which right is taken from them by the existing Samoan treaty. It is understood that the representatives of the three governments have expressed confidence of being able to obtain from their governments this concession to help the Samoans.

THE DELEGATES ENTERTAINED.

The stay of the American commissioners in Berlin is being made very pleasant. They are overwhelmed with social attentions from distinguished residents. One of the pleasantest incidents which has occurred was a call they made on Prince Bismarck at his request, which was a special mark of consideration, the Prince being in feeble health rarely goes out or receives any one.

To a representative of the press who called upon him today, Mr. Phelps said: "The proceedings of the conference I cannot disclose, but I may say through you to America that nothing is interfering with the successful conclusion of our labors but the cry of the European press that Germany is giving up everything. This charge is persistently made, and is naturally irritating our co-laborers. Moreover, it is not true that mutual concessions have been made. Germany is more willing than America to do anything to insure Samoan independence, and give the natives a better chance. This is the prime impulse of the German as well as of the American delegation."

The best indication that the conference is nearing a successful close is found in the fact that the Emperor has invited all the members to a reception at the Schloss on Monday. Only a few days ago the delegates were informed that an audience could not be given earlier than the 27th inst. The proceedings at yesterday's sitting showed much progress toward an assured settlement on every point that Prince Bismarck decided to expedite the reception.

Mormons Driven from Alabama.

BIRMINGHAM (Ala.), May 18.—A flourishing Mormon church in Clay county has been broken up by indignant citizens of the neighborhood, and the elders in charge of it have been warned to leave the county without delay. The Mormon elders have been proselyting in that county five years, and have made many converts. They established a church about one year ago, and have been holding regular services since. Most of the elders left; the others will follow. They carry most of their converts with them.

THE CONDUCTORS.

Officers Elected by the Convention at Denver.

DENVER (Colo.), May 18.—[By the Associated Press.] The election of officers at today's session of the conductors' convention was the principal business transacted. There were two tickets presented—the administration ticket, headed by Chief Wheaton and Secretary Daniels, and the opposition, at whose head Mr. Garrettson figured as leader. The former were victorious, and the following ticket was chosen: Assistant grand chief conductor, C. H. Wilkins of Chicago; grand senior conductor, E. E. Clark of Ogden, U. T.; grand junior conductor, S. F. Silvermarl of Denver; grand outside sentinel, P. J. Collins of Alabama; grand inside sentinel; W. Mundy of Ontario; member of Executive Committee for the next three years, M. Clancy of Scranton, Pa.; member of Insurance Committee for the same time, W. J. Durbin of Milwaukee. It was decided to hold the next session at Rochester, N. Y.

The question of selecting a permanent location for headquarters of the order was briefly discussed, and the convention adjourned to Monday morning at 10 o'clock. The conductors take a trip to Manitou Springs tomorrow.

SHOT THE WRONG MAN.

An Excited Policeman Makes a Fatal Blunder.

JOLIET (Ill.), May 18.—[By the Associated Press.] A man named Barry Koehler, while crazy drunk, ran amuck through the streets of the city last night. In his course he shot and seriously wounded a young lady, Miss Della Hart. A crowd gathered and began to search for him among some freight cars. Just then a freight train moved past, and at the open door of one of the cars a man was seen. The crowd called out that it was Koehler, and an excited policeman fired at him, inflicting a fatal wound in the head. Then it was discovered that the wounded man was not Koehler, but William Hansen of Chicago, on his way to Oklahoma. Koehler was captured this morning.

AT THE EXPOSITION.

THE GREAT SHOW STILL IN A CHAOTIC CONDITION.

American Exhibitors Complain of Discourteous Treatment--A Word of Timely Warning to Would-be Deadhead Visitors.

By Telegraph to The Times.

PARIS, May 18.—[Copyright, 1889, by the New York Associated Press.] Americans coming to the Exposition need not make excessive haste. Although President Carnot ceremoniously opened the Exposition at the appointed day it is up to this writing fragmentary. The great belts in the machinery palace have not yet stirred. Only two catalogues are out—the French decennial and the British. Neither is satisfactory. So far as present information justifies an opinion there is no good reason why American visitors should use any catalogue except the American, unless they have special reason for doing so.

The movable railway, which was laid in flexible routes all through the grounds, was taken up on the eve of the opening to clear the official path and lend an air of completeness to the grounds. It has not been put down again. Not one section of the fine art exhibition is complete. Various causes are assigned for the delay in all the departments.

CHARGES OF DISCOURTESY.

The American commission alleges, so far as it is concerned, that on the one hand the French authorities have not furnished the labor indispensable, either in the preparation of showcases, or the equipment of rooms; and on the other, that many Americans who applied for space, and a considerable number who shipped goods, have not appeared. In the averments of discourtesy and injustice, of vexatious disregard of reasonable comity on the part of the French direction toward the American commission, as related to a representative of the Associated Press by the officials, and frankly disclosed, an international episode might be created not wanting in the elements of grotesqueness.

A WORD OF WARNING.

A word of warning should be heeded by correspondents and specialists of the professions coming here expecting the equitable treatment enjoyed in our own country. There are no complimentary admissions. It is said that this rule applies unexceptionally to all persons, native and foreign, no matter how well known in their own country. Even if their personal credit be above suspicion, they cannot procure any attention unless possessing duly authenticated credentials in writing. If the written credentials be complete, the applicant must wait several weeks for an official acknowledgment of the fact that his right to special recognition is admitted. Then he must have two photographs taken, one to be put in a private gallery of the direction and the other to accompany his ticket of admission. After a fair trial of this circuitous and expensive road to the assumed universal courtesy of the exposition, the individual desirous of studying its departments generally resolves to pay the 20 cents admission daily and dispense with politeness decorated with red tape.

THE FINE ART EXHIBITION.

The fine art exhibition is a splendid feature of the Exposition. The French exhibit, as might be expected, is brilliant and grandiose. The entire exhibition, with the exception of certain distinct qualities in the art of Holland, is evidence of homage to the supremacy of France. The American exhibition, it must be admitted, is entirely creditable to national pride, if taken comparatively and only from an artist's way of examining the canvas. But with a country of unsurpassed scenery, with a moral history deep enough to afford that ideal prospective essential to art and with incidents to inspire legitimate scenic ambition, the American exhibit may be said to be devoid of national self-respect. Every other country proclaims to the assemblages of persons who gather here from all quarters of the globe that it has a national story, a national landscape and a moral elevation.

THE BAPTISTS.

They Will Have a Million-dollar College at Chicago.

BOSTON, May 18.—[By the Associated Press.] The American Baptist Education Society held its annual session here this afternoon and evening. The treasurer in his report said that it had been decided to establish an institution of learning at Chicago, and it was proposed to raise $1,000,000 for this purpose before June, 1890. The secretary announced that he had in his hand a letter from John D. Rockefeller, offering $50,000 if they could raise $850,000 of the $1,000,000 necessary. After the adoption of a vote of thanks to Rockefeller for his gift, officers were elected as follows: President, Francis Wayland of Connecticut; vice-presidents, George A. Pillsbury of Minnesota, L. B. Ely of Missouri; secretary, Lansing Burrows of Georgia; corresponding secretary, F. T. Gates, of Wisconsin; Treasurer, Joshua Lovering of Maryland; auditor, Colgate Hoyt of New York.

BISHOP'S DEATH.

The Second Autopsy Reveals Nothing.

Three Men Killed in an Arkansas Election Affray.

The Tragedy Likely to Result in a Race Conflict.

Cincinnati in a Tumult Over the Proposed Enforcement of the Sunday Law—Other Eastern News.

By Telegraph to The Times.

NEW YORK, May 18.—[By the Associated Press.] A special autopsy on the body of Washington Irving Bishop, the mind-reader, was made today. Dr. Furguson, who made the original autopsy, which the man's wife and mother assert caused his death, was present. The examination so far as was possible to be made today did not reveal the cause of death. Dr. Judkins, however, removed various particles of the vital organs, a microscopical examination of which is expected to settle the matter of whether or not the mind-reader died under the post-mortem knife or not.

Drs. Hamilton, Janeway and Spitzka, who were expected to be present, did not attend the autopsy. Last night a physician is said to have made the declaration that it is impossible to solve the mystery at this late time.

AN ELECTION AFFRAY.

Three Men Killed in An Arkansas Town.

LITTLE ROCK (Ark.), May 18.—[By the Associated Press.] A telegram just received from Forest City, Ark., says: D. M. Wilson, Sheriff of St. Francis county, Frank Folbre, City Marshal, and Thomas Parham, were killed in a street fight today.

For several days past excitement has been at a high pitch there over a school election. Today a large crowd assembled in the vicinity of the polls. A fight was begun by friends of two negroes, A. W. Neely and G. W. Ingram, both of whom had been making speeches during the campaign. Some one knocked Neely down and he ran down to Capt. John Parham for protection. Marshal Folbre came up and was talking in an excited manner with Parham, when Tom Parham, son of the Captain, came running down stairs from the county office and without a word fired at Marshal Folbre, inflicting a mortal wound. As Folbre was falling he fired two shots, killing Tom Parham. Several other shots were fired during the excitement and one of these struck and fatally injured Sheriff Wilson, who was running toward the scene of the affray. It is said the shot which struck him was fired by Neely.

Intense excitement prevails. Ingram, who is Coroner of the county, was waited on by a body of citizens, and invited to leave the town, which he did. Neely and a few companions are in a building on Washington street, surrounded by armed men. The people hold Neely responsible for the whole affair. Everybody able to bear arms has been on duty since the trouble began, and tonight the town is being patrolled by armed men for fear of an outbreak on the part of some faction.

THE SUNDAY LAW.

Row Over Its Proposed Enforcement at Cincinnati.

CINCINNATI, May 18.—[By the Associated Press.] Judge Ernsten of the Police Court today dismissed 700 cases of arrests made last year for violating the Owen (Sunday closing) law, but said he would not have done so if he had not reliable information that prominent citizens would cause arrests tomorrow in case there were violations.

The Mayor upon being notified of the action of the Judge expressed surprise, and spoke of it as a reflection

WHO HE IS.

JOHN E. MURRAY VOUCHSAFES INFORMATION

Which May Enlighten the Tribune, and Bring to Mind the Fact That It Has Been Running by His Suffrance for Nearly Four Months.

LOS ANGELES, May 18, 1889.—[To the Editor of THE TIMES.] The Tribune of this city has assumed to air its grievances, or pretended grievances, in its editorial columns, assuming to be the victim of persecution, and it asks, "Who is John E. Murray anyhow?" and adds in an aside, "if there is any such man as Murray." Please allow me space in your paper to explain who John E. Murray is, and to explain my status in a civil action brought against the Tribune Publishing Company et al.

I am the owner and payee of a promissory note, signed by the Tribune Publishing Company, and indorsed by H. H. Boyce, H. T. Payne, H. E. Smith and W. H. Esdor, which note is in words and figures as follows:

THE NOTE.

LOS ANGELES (Cal.), Jan. 22, 1889.

$4582.65.

One day after date, for value received, the Tribune Publishing Company promises to pay John E. Murray, or order, at the First National Bank of Los Angeles, Cal., the sum of four thousand five hundred and eighty-two and 65-100 dollars, with interest at the rate of ten per cent. per annum from date until paid, interest payable monthly, and if not so paid to be compounded monthly and bear the same rate of interest as the principal. And should the interest not be paid monthly, then the whole sum of principal and interest shall become immediately due and payable at the option of the holder of this note. Should suit be commenced to enforce the payment of this note, said company agrees to pay an additional sum of ten per cent. on principal as attorney's fees in said suit. Principal and interest payable in gold coin of the United States.

(Signed) TRIBUNE PUBLISHING CO.,
By H. H. BOYCE, President,
H. T. PAYNE, Secretary.

And on said date delivered the said promissory note to the said John E. Murray.

That before said note was delivered, as aforesaid, to said JOHN E. Murray, the same was by said defendants, H. H. Boyce, H. T. Payne, H. E. Smith and W. H. Esdor, duly indorsed, which said indorsement was in the words and figures as follows, to wit:

We, and each of us, hereby waive demand and notice of non-payment and protest of the within note.

(Signed) H. H. BOYCE,
H. T. PAYNE,
H. E. SMITH,
W. H. ESDOR.

That before said note was executed by the said Tribune Publishing Company at a meeting of the Board of Directors of said Tribune Publishing Company, specially and duly called for that purpose, a resolution was adopted by which the president and secretary of said corporation were directed, as the act of said Tribune Publishing Company, to execute said note in favor of said John E. Murray, and said note was so signed, executed and delivered as the act of and for the benefit of the said Tribune Publishing Company.

SUIT TO COLLECT.

This note, and the interest thereon, remaining unpaid, I commenced suit to enforce payment, and on the 24th of January, 1889, an attachment was issued, and, under instructions, the plant of the Tribune Publishing Company was attached. It was the intention to have the Sheriff seize the property and hold it so that there could be no question as to the validity of the levy.

Mr. Boyce, however, personally begged so hard of my attorneys, Mulford, Wilson & Bulla, and his attorneys, Haynes & Mitchell, requested so earnestly to let them get out their paper, that I consented. At the time the attachment was levied (in the afternoon) positive statements were made that the matter should be fixed up the next day. When the next day came positive statements were made that the matter would be fixed up within a few days, as there was some little hitch in negotiations by which the Tribune property was to pass under new management. That statement was made a number of times, and, relying upon that statement, I allowed the Sheriff to permit the Tribune Company to use the attached property.

Finally my lawyers told Haynes and Mitchell that other creditors were raising a question as to the validity of the levy that the Sheriff had made, for the reason that the property was substantially in the possession and under the control of the Tribune Publishing Company. My lawyers told them that, unless the matter was adjusted at once, we should instruct the Sheriff to take possession of the property in such shape that no question of the validity of the levy could arise. The result of that would be that the Tribune Company could not use the attached property to get out their paper. Thereupon Messrs. Wicks, Dunkelberger and McKoon, at the solicitation of Boyce and his attorneys, Haynes & Mitchell, as I understand, entered into an undertaking that, if the property were released from the attachment, it would be delivered to us on demand, or in default of redelivery, that they would, on demand, pay the amount of any judgment we might obtain, not excluding the sum of $5500.

THE BOND.

Following is a copy of this agreement:

In the Superior Court of Los Angeles county, State of California.

JOHN E. Murray, plaintiff, vs. the Tribune Publishing Company, et al., defendants. Undertaking on release of attachment.

Whereas, the above-named plaintiff commenced an action in the Superior Court in and for the said county of Los Angeles, State of California, against the above-named defendant, claiming that there was due to the said plaintiff from said defendant the sum of $4582.65 gold coin of the United States, besides attorney's fees, costs and interests; and thereupon an attachment issued against the property of the said defendant as security for the satisfaction of any judgment that might be recovered therein, and certain property and effects of the said defendant have been attached and seized by the Sheriff of the said county of Los Angeles, under and by virtue of the said writ. And

Whereas, the said defendant has appeared in the said action and has applied to the said Court upon reasonable notice to the said plaintiff for an order to discharge the same upon the execution of an undertaking on behalf of the said defendant by at least two sureties, in accordance with the provisions of section 554 of the Code of Civil Procedure of the State of California, and of section 555 of said code; and the said Court having fixed the sum for which the undertaking shall be executed at the sum of $8000.

Now, therefore, we the undersigned, residents and freeholders in the said State of California, in consideration of the premises, and in consideration of the release from attachment of all the property attached, as above mentioned, and in discharge of said attachment, do hereby jointly and severally undertake in the said sum of $8000, and promise that in case the said plaintiff recover judgment in the said action, the said defendant will, on demand, redeliver such attached property, so released, to the proper officer, to be applied to the payment of the judgment, or that in default thereof the said defendant and sureties will, on demand, pay to the said plaintiff the full value of the property released, not exceeding the sum of $5500.

Dated the 30th day of January, 1889.

[Seal.] M. L. WICKS.
[Seal.] I. R. DUNKELBERGER.
[Seal.] M. G. MCKOON.

State of California, county of Los Angeles.—ss.

M. L. Wicks and I. R. Dunkelberger and M. G. McKoon, whose names are subscribed as the sureties to the above undertaking, being severally and duly sworn, each for himself, says that he is a resident and freeholder within the State of California, of the said county of Los Angeles, and is worth the sum in said undertaking specified as the penalty thereof, over and above all his just debts and liabilities, exclusive of property exempt from execution.

M. L. WICKS,
I. R. DUNKELBERGER,
M. G. MCKOON.

Subscribed and sworn to before me this 30th day of January, 1889.

[Notarial Seal.] W. H. SEAMANS,
Notary Public.

Upon the execution of this agreement the property was released from attachment.

The Sheriff's keeper had been in charge from January 24th until February 1st, when the Court made an order to release the property.

The defendants then filed an answer to my complaint, all joining. The answer was sworn to by Col. Boyce, none of the allegations of which were true.

BOYCE'S ANSWER.

(Title of court and cause.)

The defendants answer the complaint as follows:

That on the 22d day of January, 1889, and prior thereto, the defendant, the Tribune Publishing Company, was indebted to the First National Bank of Los Angeles in a large sum of money, to wit, the sum of $4500, and the said bank held the note of said publishing company for said amount, which was overdue. That on the said 22d day of January, 1889, the defendant, at the request of the said the First National Bank, made the promissory note mentioned in the complaint in payment of the indebtedness of the defendant, the Tribune Publishing Company, to the said bank aforesaid; that at and before the time of the making of the said note, and as a part of the inducement for these defendants to sign the same, it was expressly agreed by and between the said bank and the defendants that if the interest upon the principal sum therein mentioned was promptly paid from month to month, as the same accrued, according to the tenor and effect thereof, that the said bank would hold the said note for a reasonable time and not demand or require or attempt to enforce payment thereof.

That defendant, relying upon the said promise, made the said note, as in the complaint alleged, and delivered the same to the said bank on the day of the date thereof, and thereupon, immediately afterwards, to wit, on January 24, 1889, and without any previous notice or demand for payment, this action was begun and attachments were issued therein. And defendants allege upon their information and belief that the said First National Bank is the owner of the said note and the real party in interest, and that John E. Murray, named in said note, and as plaintiff herein, has not any interest in said note or in this action, but this action is in fact prosecuted by said bank in his name.

Wherefore defendants pray to be hence dismissed, with the costs.

HAYNES & MITCHELL,
Attorneys for Defendants.

State of California, county of Los Angeles.—ss.

H. H. Boyce, being duly sworn, says that he is one of the defendants in the above-entitled action; that he has heard read the foregoing answer and knows the contents thereof; that the same is true of his own knowledge, except as to the matters which are therein stated on his information or belief, and as to those matters he believes it to be true.

H. H. BOYCE.

Subscribed and sworn to before me this 19th day of March, 1889.

C. H. DUNSMOOR, Clerk.
By J. M. DUNSMOOR, Deputy.

AT ISSUE.

The case was then at issue, and was set for trial April 18th. On the morning of that day a motion was made to continue the trial until the afternoon on account of the absence of Col. Boyce, he being at home, asleep, and recovering from his exhaustive labors of the night before in helping to extinguish the fire in the Tribune press-room (the first fire). In the afternoon Judge Haynes went into court and consented to a judgment for the full amount of the claim and costs. He made an application for stay of execution for ten days, and as my attorneys were assured that the claim would be paid in that time they made no objection to the order. After the ten days had expired, we were requested not to issue execution, as there was another syndicate being formed to purchase the paper, and the money was all up, but there was just one "little hitch." A peculiar circumstance about all these syndicates being formed to take the paper and pay off the indebtedness, was that there was always "a little hitch," and the only source of information, direct and positive, about these new deals, with one exception, came from Col. Boyce or Mr. Payne. They could never be traced further than these men. I do not want to say anything against the integrity and fair dealing of the attorneys, Haynes and Mitchell. They always told us that their source of information was Col. Boyce or Mr. Payne, and they would not vouch personally for the truth of statements made.

MORE APPEALS.

After the stay of execution had expired, appeals were made to us by the sureties, and by Messrs. Haynes and Mitchell, then claiming to represent the sureties, not to press the matter, as it was always going to be "fixed up," and that within a day or so.

Finally, my patience was exhausted, as I desired and needed my money, and I saw no other chance to get it except by forcing matters. Indeed, one of the sureties stated to my lawyers that he believed nothing was going to be done by way of settlement, and he wished us to go ahead. I then instructed my attorneys to issue an execution and to take the proper steps upon the undertaking entered into by Dunkelberger, Wicks and McKoon. After the execution had been prepared, and before it was placed in the hands of the Sheriff, the attorneys for the sureties and the Tribune Publishing Company were informed of what was going to be done. That was on the morning of last Tuesday, the 14th inst. The result was, that within about 20 minutes, Boyce telephoned to the office of my attorney, and, talking to Mr. Bulla, made a most pitiful appeal for delay until the afternoon of that day, stating that Judge Mitchell was on his way to their office to see them with reference to the matter. Judge Mitchell made his appearance, and stated that he was informed by Mr. Payne that was forming and they were just waiting for the departure of the Senatorial committee to close the matter up, as some of the gentlemen in attendance upon the Senatorial committee were interested in the syndicate. My attorneys were induced by this appeal and the representation made to delay placing the the execution in the hands of the Sheriff until the next day (Wednesday).

Then ex-Gov. Sheldon appeared at the office of my attorneys and said he was thinking of taking a hand in the purchase of the paper. Certain representations had been made to him and he was going to have experts examine the books and ascertain the truth or falsity of the representations. If the result was favorable he might buy; otherwise not. He asked concerning the amount and conditions of the judgment against the Tribune Publishing Company and stated that he was only seeking information. That was the only time that anybody except Mr. Boyce, Mr. Payne or their attorneys made any representations relating to a syndicate forming.

My attorneys told ex-Gov. Sheldon that the syndicate seemed to be a mere possibility and unless something more tangible could be shown, in justice to their client, they could not delay the matter any longer.

The execution was placed in the hands of the Sheriff Wednesday afternoon and Haynes & Mitchell were telephoned to that effect. The following written instructions to the Sheriff were given:

INSTRUCTIONS TO THE SHERIFF.

In the Superior Court of Los Angeles county, State of California.

John E. Murray, plaintiff, vs. the Tribune Publishing Company, H. H. Boyce, H. T. Payne, H. E. Smith and W. H. Esdor, defendants—Instructions:

To the Sheriff of Los Angeles county, State of California—With the writ of execution issued in the above-entitled action against the above-named defendants the following instructions are hereby given you:

Before January 30, 1889, under a writ of attachment issued in the above-entitled action, you attached and levied upon certain personal property of the defendants which is shown by your return on said writ of attachment is described as follows, to wit: 2 standing desks, 9 folding desks, 1 folding desk, 1 folding desk, 3 folding desks, 3 folding tables, 3 tables, 1 safe, 21 chairs, 1 letter press, 3 waste baskets, 4 stoves, 1 counter, 32 lamps, 28 type frames, 47 pairs type cases, 6 imposing stones, 8 trucks, 8 pairs chases, 3 batteries, 30 galleys, 1 desk, nonpareil type, about 600 pounds; minion type, about 500 pounds; display type, about 500 pounds; 33 mailing galleys, 1 mailer, 1 press and fixtures, 1 engine and shafting, 1 boiler, 1 stereotyping outfit, 1 elevator and fixtures, 1 bookcase; press, web perfecting, No. 12, made by C. Potter & Co.

You also attached all the shares of stock of the Tribune Publishing Company and of all the other defendants in the Tribune Publishing Company, as appears from said return.

On January 30, 1889, all said property and stock was released from said writ by order of Court, upon the bond being given to the effect that said defendants would on demand re-deliver said attached property to the proper officer. You are now instructed to demand of the defendants, and each of them, to re-deliver to you all of said property so levied upon and attached, including said shares of stock.

You are also instructed to demand of the sureties of said bond, to wit, M. L. Wicks, I. R. Dunkelberger and M. G. McKoon, to deliver to you all of said property so levied upon and attached. You are also instructed that an offer on the part of said defendants, or any of them, or of the sureties, to return a portion of the property so attached and released, is not a compliance with the terms of said bond, and that you must have returned to you all of said property and shares of stock, or none of them. If the whole of said property and stock, so attached, be not returned, you must not accept any thereof. [See Metrovich vs. Javorich, 58 Cal., 341.]

You are also instructed that the property to be returned must be in as good order and condition, natural wear and tear excepted, as when it was released from attachment. In the event that said property, including said shares of stock, be not returned to you, please notify us, in order that we may sue upon the bond given by Wicks, Dunkelberger and McKoon.

If all of said property, including said shares of stock, be returned to you, please subject the same by sale to the satisfaction of the execution. Yours respectfully,

MULFORD, WILSON & BULLA,
Attorneys for Plaintiff.

The Sheriff thereupon demanded the property of the defendants and their sureties, and on Thursday certain property was tendered to the Sheriff by the sureties, as I understand, and was refused for the reason that it was not all of the same property that was released and was in a materially damaged condition. The second fire in the Tribune office occurred last Thursday morning before the tender was made. On Friday the instructions were placed in the hands of the Sheriff, ordering him to "levy upon, take possession of and sell property of whatever kind or nature subject to said execution, belonging to the said defendants or any of them, sufficient to satisfy the judgment heretofore entered."

When these instructions were first placed in the hands of the Deputy Sheriff, there was nothing said as to running the paper, but the Deputy Sheriff was told that we did not wish him to run the paper or allow the Tribune Company control of the property levied upon, as there might be some question as to the validity of the levy in case the possessions were surrendered. He desired specific written instructions, which were then embodied in the instructions before given. He was not instructed to exclude the Tribune people from the building, but simply to restrain them from the use of the property. There were, in fact, no instruction outside of the written ones. We did not care whether they got out their paper or not elsewhere, but simply did not want to jeopardize our interests.

FINAL INSTRUCTIONS TO THE SHERIFF.

In the Superior Court of Los Angeles County, State of California.

John E. Murray, plaintiff, vs. Tribune Publishing Company, H. H. Boyce, H. T. Payne, H. E. Smith and W. H. Esdor, defendants—Instructions.

To the Sheriff of Los Angeles County, State of California: Under the execution issued in the above-entitled action you are hereby instructed to levy upon, take possession of, and sell property of whatever kind or nature subject to said execution, belonging to the said defendants, or any of them, sufficient to satisfy the judgment heretofore entered in said action in favor of said plaintiff and against said defendants, and each of them.

And for that purpose you are hereby instructed to levy upon, take possession of, place a keeper in charge, and sell, among other property, all or any part of that certain personal property which may be subject to execution used by said defendant, the Tribune Publishing Company, in the management and carrying on of its business, including presses, machinery, types, paper, desks, office furniture and all other personal property used in the management and conduct of the business of the said Tribune Publishing Company, including all shares of the capital stock of said corporation, the Tribune Publishing Company, belonging to any or all of said defendants.

You are instructed not to manage or run said newspaper known as the Tribune, and published by the Tribune Publishing Company, or to allow said Tribune Company to use the property levied on.

You are also instructed to garnishee any money or other personal property belonging to said defendant, the Tribune Publishing Company, or any other of said defendants, in the hands of, or under the control of, I. R. Dunkelberger, M. L. Wicks or M. G. McKoon, or either of them.

AND STILL ANOTHER SYNDICATE.

Even last Friday afternoon, late, my attorneys were told that one man had gone to San Francisco and another to Pasadena to organize still another syndicate to take the paper, but supposing there may still be a "hitch," I must decline further delay.

In the whole matter, I have simply proceeded for the collection of a just debt by the methods prescribed by law. My attorneys and myself have been extremely lenient to the debtors, and their attorneys have repeatedly assured us that we have done all anybody could ask us to do, and more. In fact, they confessed that they were ashamed to come to us and ask further favors. We have been ready at any time to make an adjustment of the matter, if only a part of the money had been paid and the rest secured.

JOHN E. MURRAY.

A True Bill.

We indorse the above as a correct statement of facts.

As a persistent effort has been made in the columns of the Tribune to identify the Times-Mirror Company, or members of said corporation, with this transaction, parading them in the light of instigators to these proceedings or would-be persecutors of the Tribune, we wish to say, in justice to all parties concerned, that neither the Times-Mirror Company nor any of its stockholders, officers or employés, nor any outside party whatever, has had anything to do with influencing our proceedings. We have acted solely in the interests of our client, John E. Murray, for the collection of a debt honestly and justly due.

FIRST STREET.

The City Answers to the Obstructionists.

The answer of the city in the First-street viaduct case of Charles Schatte vs. the City of Los Angeles was filed yesterday by City Attorney McFarland. The defense of the city is as follows:

The city is informed and believes that the plaintiff is not the owner in fee-simple and entitled to the possession of the real estate described in the complaint, and which he claims will be damaged by the viaduct. But it alleges that the city itself is the owner in fee of the whole of First street and particularly that part situated in front of the property described in the complaint. That a large portion of the city, called Boyle Heights, is situated east of the Los Angeles River, and contains a population of 8,000 people, whose most accessible route to and from the heart of the city is along First street, which is one of its main arteries. That in July, 1888, the City Council declared that the erection of a bridge was necessary for the public safety and convenience, and in September entered into a contract with the California Bridge Company for its construction; that it is not an elevated viaduct, but a bridge, with the necessary approaches. The city further alleges that the bridge is not 56 feet wide in front of the plaintiff's property, but only 48 feet wide at that point; that there is a space of 28 feet between the plaintiff's property and the line of the bridge, and 18 feet between the bridge and sidewalk instead of 10 feet as the plaintiff alleges.

The answer further states that the approaches to the bridge is built of iron upon supports not to exceed eight inches square, and not nearer than 20 feet apart, and a vehicle can pass under and turn around under the viaduct anywhere in front of the plaintiff's property.

It also states that by reason of the constant passage of trains the viaduct has become a necessity to carry the traffic over the tracks and secure the safety of life and limb. That the bridge is so constructed that all the foot travel will necessarily pass and repass in front of the premises of the plaintiff, for the reason that the passage set apart for foot passengers on the bridge ends at his east line, and a pair of steps will be erected from the end of the foot passage to the street below.

The answer denies that the bridge will damage the plaintiff's property in any manner whatever, or interfere with any business which might be carried on in it, but that it will be rendered more valuable by the building of the bridge.

The defendant said that ever since the Council declared the necessity for the bridge it has been a matter of public notoriety and the plaintiff has had personal notice of the fact that the bridge will be built, and permitted the city without protest to remove the old bridge preparatory to the erection of the new one, to enter into contract for it, and waited until the material had been manufactured and was on the ground, before he asserted any claim for damages or took any steps to prevent the carrying out of the contract. That if the building of the bridge is stopped by an injunction it will result disastrously to the city at large and the people of the East Side.

The defendant, while denying that the plaintiff will be damaged, did, when the temporary restraining order was issued, agree to submit to arbitration. The plaintiff also agreed, and arbitrators awarded him $1500, which he refused to take. This amount the defendant is still willing to pay, and also offers to enter into a bond that the city will pay any damage over and above that sum which the plaintiff may sustain by the erection of the bridge.

NO FIGHT.

Dempsey and Ellingsworth Cannot Agree.

The much-talked-of match between Jack Dempsey and Joe Ellingsworth is still as far off as ever, despite the fact that the Southern California Athletic Club has brought the New York amateur middle-weight champion to Los Angeles for the express purpose of meeting the Nonpareil.

Dempsey, when in San Francisco, promised President Fulda of the California Athletic Club that he would give that club the first call upon his services after his present engagement with the Williams Company is completed. Had he not done so there would doubtless have been but little trouble in arranging a fight in Los Angeles. He now refuses to sign articles to fight Ellingsworth unless the California Athletic Club will release him from his promise. This they seem very loth to do, and as a means of solving the difficulty, Jack Dempsey offered the directors of the Southern California Athletic Club a chance to decide whether he meet Ellingsworth here or in San Francisco by the toss of a coin. As in the event of losing this would mean a loss to the Los Angeles Club of the amount it has cost them to bring Ellingsworth here, and as, moreover, they will in the event of Dempsey refusing to fight, match Ellingsworth against some other prominent middle-weight, they refused to accept his terms, and will now have to look elsewhere for an opponent for the New York ex-amateur.

SCOTT HELD.

CONCLUSION OF THE EXAMINATION YESTERDAY.

The Justice Finds That, While the Case is a Little Shadowy, There is Enough Evidence to Warrant a Hearing Before a Jury.

Charles Scott was not looking well when he came into Justice Lockwood's court yesterday morning. His face was pale and his eyes were bloodshot. He has not fully recovered from the effects of the wound on his head, and has not been able to sustain the strain of his examination on the charge of murdering Annie le Brun, April 13th.

The examination was resumed by the introduction of J. W. Clawson to prove the good character of the defendant. He testified that he overheard Mr. Merchant and Mr. Kutz in a saloon on Requena street discussing Scott's character. They said he was a steady, hard-working man and always quiet.

The interest in the examination reached its culminating point as Attorney Payton told Scott to take the stand. The defendant walked around the table slowly, and looked quite haggard as he sank into the chair. His testimony was given in a straightforward manner, and he betrayed emotion at times. His story was as follows:

"My name is Charles Scott, and I am 32 years old. I have lived in Los Angeles about one and a half years, and came here from New York city. I lived ten years in New York city. I am a blacksmith by trade. I did not kill that woman. That night I had been to the circus with her, and we returned about 11 o'clock. I took my revolver from the bureau drawer and laid it on a chair in front of the bed. We went to bed and Annie put her arms around me. She said, 'Charley, there are some people trying to get me to leave you.' She talked about dying. I told her that she was too young to kill herself, and that better times were in store for her. I then turned over and went to sleep. Between 4 and 5 o'clock something woke me up. I turned toward her and just then heard a shot. I felt pains in my head, and then knew nothing more for a long time. I woke up feeling cold, and got up to close the door, which was standing open. Blood was running down my throat. I vomited blood. Then I got back into bed, and found her uncovered. I pulled the blankets over her. As I did so I felt something heavy near my hip. It was my pistol. I looked and saw she was shot. I felt her face. It was cold. I knew nothing more for some time. When I came to I called to the Chinaman, who was working in the kitchen. He came to the door and looked in. I said: 'For God's sake go for a doctor.' But he ran away, leaving the door open. After awhile some one came in, and I said I must have a doctor. The gun, when found, was about three feet from the head of the bed. When I first awoke the door was standing open. I do not know how it came open. I left the lamp burning when I went to bed, and it was still burning in the morning. If anyone had come into the room they would have seen the gun on the chair. The door was not locked. The window could be easily raised.

"I first met the deceased as I was passing along by her window. She called me in, and I had not been with her long when she said she loved me. She said I looked very much like her former husband. I engaged rooms on South Spring street, and we lived together. She often told me people were trying to get her to leave me and live with a man named Pete. I told her to go, but she told me she loved only me. We had been rooming on Spring street about two weeks when she took out my revolver. Baring her breast she placed the muzzle against her heart, and said, 'Good-by, Charlie; I have caused you trouble, but will not any more.' I grabbed the pistol just in time and took it away from her. I took the cartridges out and threw them out of the window. Several times after that when despondent, she threatened to kill herself. If I said I heard two shots that is not so."

At the afternoon session Dr. Choate was put on in rebuttal. He gave it as his opinion that Annie le Brun could not have inflicted the wound on herself and then shot Scott. Her death must have been instantaneous, and she had not moved from the position in which death occurred.

Thomas McCarthy, detective, said that Scott told him the day after the shooting that he shot her and then himself. The detective asked who he meant by "he," and Scott replied that it was not a woman who fired, but that he did not see any man.

H. Slotterbeck was recalled to examine the three unexploded cartridges found in the revolver. They had indentations on them. The witness said that while the indentations on the exploded and unexploded cartridges were similar, yet the indentations on those unexploded might have originated by striking the hammer on a chair, or otherwise.

H. B. Adams, gunsmith, said he believed the indentations could only have been made by snapping the hammer. That the hammer of the revolver in question is weak and might be snapped several times and the pistol fail to go off.

This closed the testimony, and arguments were made by Deputy District Attorney Hardesty and Mr. Payton. The former dwelt upon the various features of the evidence, and held that it was absolutely impossible for the woman to have shot herself and then shot Scott, and that he thought it clear that Scott committed the crime.

Mr. Payton argued that the evidence was entirely circumstantial and was insufficient to show that Scott was guilty. He held to the theory that some one outside did the shooting.

The Court, in holding the accused, said that the case was one of circumstantial evidence entirely; that, with the exception of showing a motive for the crime, the evidence was strong. He said that either the defendant, the deceased, or some one outside did the shooting. He could not do anything but hold the defendant. The Court first fixed the bail at $10,000, but at the request of Mr. Payton, the District Attorney consented to a reduction of the bail to $5000, which was done.

NOT A PIMPLE ON HIM NOW.

Bad with Eczema—Hair All Gone—Scalp Covered with Eruptions—Thought His Hair Would Never Grow—Cured by Cuticura Remedies—Hair Splendid and not a Pimple on Him.

I cannot say enough in praise of the CUTICURA REMEDIES. My boy, when one year of age, was so bad with eczema that he lost all of his hair. His scalp was covered with eruptions, which the doctor said was scald head, and that his hair would never grow again. Despairing of a cure from physicians, I began the use of the CUTICURA REMEDIES, and, I am happy to say, with the most perfect success. His hair is now splendid, and there is not a pimple on him. I recommend the CUTICURA REMEDIES to mothers as the most speedy, economical and sure cure for all skin diseases of infants and children, and feel that every mother who has an afflicted child will thank me for so doing.

A Fever Sore Eight Years Cured.

I must extend to you the thanks of one of my customers, who has been cured by using the CUTICURA REMEDIES, of an old sore, caused by a long spell of sickness of fever eight years ago. He was so bad he was fearful he would have to have his leg amputated, but is happy to say he is now entirely well,—sound as a dollar. He requests me to use his name, which is H. H. CASON, merchant of this place.

Severe Scalp Disease Cured.

A few weeks ago my wife suffered very much from a cutaneous disease of the scalp, and received no relief from the various remedies she used until she tried CUTICURA. The disease promptly yielded to this treatment, and in a short while she was entirely well. There has been no return of the disease, and CUT. CURA ranks No. 1 in our estimation for diseases of the skin.

Sanford's Radical Cure for Catarrh.

Cure Begins from First Application, and is Rapid, Radical and Permanent.

It is the mucous membrane, that wonderful semi-fluid envelope surrounding the delicate tissues of the air and food passages, that Catarrh makes its stronghold. Once established, it eats into the very vitals, and renders life but a long-drawn breath of misery and disease, dulling the sense of hearing, trammeling the power of speech, destroying the faculty of smell, tainting the breath, and killing the refined pleasures of taste. Insidiously, by creeping on from a simple cold in the head, it assaults the mucous membranous lining and envelops the bones, eating through the delicate coats and causing inflammation, sloughing and other dangerous symptoms. Nothing short of total eradication will secure health to the patient, and all alleviatives are simply procrastinated sufferings. SANFORD'S RADICAL CURE, by Inhalation and by Internal administration, rarely fails; even when the disease has made frightful inroads on delicate constitutions, hearing, smell and taste have been recovered, and the disease thoroughly driven out.

Sanford's Radical Cure for Catarrh Consists of one bottle of RADICAL CURE, one box CATARRHAL SOLVENT and one IMPROVED INHALER, neatly wrapped in one package, with full directions; price $1. Sold everywhere. POTTER DRUG & CHEMICAL CORPORATION, Boston.

IT is said that party services, not fitness, dictated the appointment of employés in the Chicago Insane Asylum. Wonder whether that is what is the matter with the Los Angeles police force?

MR. MILLIONAIRE BRYSON was much censured for placing two of his sons on the police force, but, if it is true, as reported, that among the recently appointed thirty-four are men whose wealth ranges from $100,000 down to $5000, then we have only tumbled out of the frying-pan into the fire, as it were.

IT is proposed to establish a trade in tropical fruits between Manzanilla and San Diego. It should be extended to San Pedro. THE German Turners are now holding a grand festival in San Bernardino. Much of the stalwartness of the German race is due to their thoroughly developed system of gymnastic exercises; a system which might with great benefit be copied in this country, where we are apt to over-train the youthful mind at the expense of the body.

WE grieve to notice that some of our contemporaries are questioning the intentions of the Australian lady-bug toward the icerya purchasi. We believe that our fair but diminutive Australian visitor's intentions are entirely honorable. A DISPATCH from Boston states that the Atchison road has arranged with the Peninsular and Oriental Steamship Company to put on a first-class line of steamers to ply between San Diego and Yokohama, and handle a portion of the silk trade. The "P. and O.," as it is generally called, is the great English steamship company running from England, via the Red Sea, to India, China and Japan. If true, this will be a big thing for San Diego.

SUPPOSE WE GO TO WORK.

The charter question having been settled, it is now time for us to go to work. There is plenty to be done. Sewers, and boulevards, and parks, and manufactories, and harbors, and railroads to fuel and mineral beds, and beet-sugar works, and canneries, and mining enterprises, and a first-class hotel and an exposition—these are only a portion of the things that should be put under way at once.

We are standing still. We have been waiting to bring order out of the chaos left by the boom. That is now pretty well accomplished. We know where we stand. Real estate has found its level, unless we sit still too long. What is to come next? That is the question for our capitalists to answer. Poor men may have good ideas, but it takes capital to carry them out. Therefore, the responsibility is with our moneyed men. If they don't want to see their property depreciate still further, their houses and stores stand empty, they must put their shoulders to the wheel.

We have a very fine climate, but we cannot live on climate alone. The sooner we realize that fact the better it will be for us. The largest, richest and busiest cities in the United States have a very poor climate. Their citizens made them what they are, in spite of climatic conditions. Florida, on the other hand, has a very fine climate, but no lively cities. Unless we make some well-devised and concerted effort we shall shortly find ourselves left high and dry, with nothing but our climate to live on, while other less favored but more enterprising communities in the Southwest sail over the sea of prosperity ahead of us.

Talk is good, but talk alone will not do the business, any more than the oiling of the machinery will send an ocean greyhound across the Atlantic in the face of a gale. Steam is necessary, and to make steam there must be fuel, which, in our case, means dollars of our daddies.

What are our wealthy, intelligent and once enterprising fellow-citizens going to do about it? Don't all speak at once!

THERE is a general and growing impression among the public that the only practical remedy for the present scandalous and demoralizing state of affairs in the police department is the effecting of a complete change in the personnel of the commission—the dismissal of the present board and the appointment of four new members, among which might or might not be included one of the present members, who has shown a disposition to further the interests of the people as against a clique. It is stated that several members of the Council are in favor of such a change. If they feel any desire to regain the position they have lost in the estimation of their constituents they should lose no time in making a clean sweep. Public disapproval will be rapidly transferred from the commission to the Council unless something decisive is done without delay.

IT is announced that the new company which proposes to buy out the electric railroad will use the poles already there, but will take out every other one and place them on the opposite side of the road, connecting them by a steel wire, and having another wire lengthways down the street, conveying the current. This is worse and worse. The present system of poles is a disfigurement, but that proposed would amount to a practical burial of the street traversed by the line, and would certainly cause a heavy deprecation in property. We are not very esthetic out here, but there ought to be some limit beyond which corporations should not be permitted to play havoc with the appearance of what ought to be one of the most beautiful cities in America.

THE Trombone yesterday morning, in one of its articles upon itself that have become so numerous of late, and carrying out its policy of bluffs, has the gall to ask: "Who is John E. Murray, anyhow?" and adds: "If there is any such man as Murray." In this issue of THE TIMES Mr. Murray furnishes full plans, details and specifications, to show who he is, to prove that the false and shameless publishers of the fakir organ have been negotiating with him ever since January, and that it has only been through his sufferance and indulgence that they have been permitted to continue to issue their miserable sheet. This time Mr. Boyce's bluff did not work.

FOR the past ten years or more, the history of the Los Angeles police force has been a history of disgraceful squabbles. During these ten years there have been about as many different chiefs, and efficiency has been invariably sacrificed to political preferences. Neither party can plead any great advantage over the other in this matter. In the East an efficient chief will hold office for a quarter of a century, or more. Our citizens are very tired of this state of affairs, and loudly demand a new deal.

RESIDENTS in the neighborhood of First and Alameda streets complain very bitterly of the blowing for nearly five minutes every evening of the electric light factory's whistle which is loud enough to wake the dead. To well people this is a nuisance, and to sick people a cruel torture. If the purpose of the unnecessarily protracted noice is to give a signal to men at a distance, that should be accomplished in some other manner. Nowadays, such nuisances are prohibited in most civilized cities, and they should be so here.

EVEN-TEMPERED and charitable as this paper is usually, she will resent an attack, and some people in Los Angeles had better get away from the business end of the Tribune. She is loaded with dynamite, and shoots like the cruiser Vesuvius. [Trombone.

At length we are officially informed regarding the sex and genus of the Matutinal Abortion. "She" is evidently a female polecat.

THE Southern Pacific officials are inclined to deny the truth of the account published in THE TIMES regarding the accident near Tehachepi. If the Southern Pacific officials desire, we can furnish them the names of half a dozen old and reliable residents of Los Angeles, who were passengers on the train and who will testify to the accuracy of our report. We do not wish to make too much of these unfortunate occurrences; neither do we intend to permit our reports to be attacked without cause, for the purpose of shielding the company.

DOWN TO THE SEA.

It is a pleasant little trip at this season of the year from Los Angeles to Santa Monica. Long before the shore is reached the cool sea breeze meets the traveler with its delicious breath. The change in the atmosphere is very marked, and happy indeed is Los Angeles in having so near a resort so inviting and pleasant.

A stranger coming to Los Angeles by way of Santa Monica must be impressed with the beauty of the country lying between this metropolis and the sea. He will see land that lies beautifully sloping to the broad and undulating valley from the picturesque hills on either side. He will see cornfields, vineyards, green alfalfa meadows and wide orchards, all helping to fill in the picture. There is a majestic sweep of country to be seen from the Soldiers' Home—a landscape so varied and beautiful the Nation's heroes can but be cheered by the "various language" which Nature speaks to them from the sunny and peaceful heights where the evening of their days is passing. Behind them the mountains rise like a protecting wall. Before them the foothill spur slopes gradually to the level valley expanse, which in places stretches away to meet the horizon, and elsewhere runs to the hills and the sea. Far away over the shining plain of waters rises Catalina, blue in the warm distance, with the white-crested waves rippling upon its sands. Sometimes it is wrapped in soft, translucent haze, which lends to it poetic beauty. Its mountain crests seem pillowed on the sky, as are their base on the blue deep of sparkling waters. The sea-gulls wing their way above the waves, and the sunshine is turning the waters into liquid gold. The little skiffs float like birds upon the bosom of the sea, and up and down the coast the steamers sail, as if passing beyond the line of the horizon into another world.

On the hills and along the plains are great of groves eucalypti, sharp and pointed as a soldier's scimeter. They stretch in green, dividing lines across the valley, and are suggestive of the cool, breezy currents which dispel the sultriness of our summer days. What a peaceful picture the large herds of cattle make, feeding upon the ripe grasses. They dot a vast extent of rich pasture, and stand dreamily at noon chewing their cuds in the shadow of the pepper trees or the shimmering eucalypti. These blessed old heroes who stood between us and the dismemberment of the Republic must rejoice that their last days may be spent where Nature is so beneficent in her sunshine and calm; and we love to have them here.

Almost upon the border of the lands belonging to the Soldiers' Home is "The Palms," one of the most attractive and promising of our boom towns. Every time that I pass it I am struck with some fresh feature of its beauty. It occupies as pretty a stretch of undulating land, bordered by low hilly elevations, as can be found anywhere in the world. It has many handsome suburban homes, and is rich in tree wealth. The founders of this pretty little city of the plains were wise men, in that they planted trees without number. How cool will be their summer shadows! how rich in beauty their emerald foliage!

Beyond The Palms, until we arrive in Los Angeles, is a succession of groves, orchards and vineyards, with wide grain fields and sunny meadows, while before the traveler is the sapphire wall of the Sierras, illumined by the sunshine, and their highest crests hoar with the white snows of winter. "Like as the mountains were round about Jerusalem," so are they round about the City of the Angels. E. A. O.

AMUSEMENTS.

GRAND OPERA-HOUSE.—The closing performances of The Highest Bidder by Mr. E. H. Sothern and his company were fairly well attended yesterday, and the comedians will leave here feeling that they have made a most favorable impression. Mr. Sothern is an artist, and is bound to make a permanent place for himself in the highest walks of the profession. His support has been above the average. Rowland Buckstone in The Highest Bidder was especially good, and did full justice to a character part just suited to him, and the veteran Bishop has seldom appeared to better advantage than in his eccentric character in the same play.

PEOPLE'S THEATER.—A large audience was gathered in this theater last night to witness the first performance of a piece entitled Velvet and Rags, though why so called is hard to discover. The original title, Kathleen Mavourneen, would have been better preserved. The play has an interesting little plot, something similar to that of Egypt, and the action is carried on by the company with a fair amount of skill and a good deal of praiseworthy endeavor. It would manifestly be unfair to expect in a house devoted to cheap prices the finish and perfection one has a right to look for in the houses of large pretensions. Judged by the proper standard, the performance of last night was good of its kind, and worth the admission. The leading parts were taken by W. C. Crosbie, an actor of experience and good ability, and Miss Helen Harlow, a débutante of considerable promise. She has a good voice, a pretty face and an amount of savoir faire which indicates future possibilities of the most encouraging kind for her art.

The piece was well received, and will be continued during the week.

Heart Weariness.

O, land above the stars!
How far away are ye—the golden bars
That lie between this earthly realm of ours
And blessed life, and heaven's unfading flowers?
I sometimes long to go,
For I grow weary often here below
Of earthly life, and its heart loneliness
And long for larger life and purer holiness.
Each soul at times must stand
On solitary places where no hand
Can touch its springs, no thought but God's own thought,
Divine its longings, which earth-life answers not.
How oft I feel alone,
As if in this great universe were none
But me, but me and God, and sometimes He is far
As farthest planet or fixed shining star.

I feel sometimes so cold,
As if no human love did me enfold,
As if I were adrift on some far, shoreless sea,
No soul to hear, no tongue to answer me.

And then I kneel to pray,
And soon I feel my Father come my way,
And lo! within my heart this voice I hear,
"Look up, my child, behold thy Father near."

How fades my sorrow then!
How brightens thought, as does the old earth when Night slippeth down before the golden dawn,
And out of darkness comes the glorious morn.

O, only here is rest,
In God's great fullness only are we blest,
His love is like earth's blessed atmosphere,
Above, around, within us, everywhere.

Sensational Murder Case at Liverpool.

Jefferson Davis's Niece Charged with Poisoning Her Husband.

Rochefort Arrested for Attempting to Shoot a Compatriot.

Emperor William Tells German Mine Owners That They Must Compromise with the Strikers —Foreign Notes.

By Telegraph to The Times.

LONDON, May 18.—[By Cable and Associated Press.] Mrs. Maybrich, a niece of Jefferson Davis, and a French Canadian aristocrat by birth, has been arrested at Liverpool on a charge of poisoning her husband. Maybrich's brother Michael, known as Stephen Adams, a musical composer, and other relatives hesitated to act on the reports circulated as to the cause of Maybrich's death.

Today a county magistrate, Col. Biddell, accompanied by the Chief of Police, went to the Maybrich residence. They were told that the lady was in bed. Medical men were summoned, and after an examination they pronounced her fit to hear the charge. Her sister demanded to know the nature of the evidence. The Chief of Police responded that he had grave evidence that the woman had given arsenic to her husband from time to time.

The officials went to the bedroom where the woman lay, haggard, but composed. The magistrate directed that she be removed to Kirkdale jail, where she is now being attended by doctors and a nurse. The case has caused a great sensation.

THE GERMAN STRIKERS.

Emperor William Vigorously Taking Their Part.

BERLIN, May 18.—[By Cable and Associated Press.] The Emperor, impatient at the delay in bringing about peace between the miners and employers, has directed the President of the Province of Westphalia to convey to the mining companies his emphatic desire to accelerate the compromise. It is reported that the President has resigned, the Emperor blaming him for allowing affairs to drift, and also for sending out false alarms as to the encounters between strikers and the military. Dr. Hintzpeter, who is now by command of the Emperor, making a tour of the strike districts, in order to hear both sides, is charged to warn mine-owners that the Government will resent their action if they refuse to grant the essential claims of the men. The power of the Government to make employers feel the weight of its displeasure lies at hand. The mine-owners have obtained during recent years many favors. They have secured special tariffs throughout Germany, and have been granted low freight rates to Hamburg, Bremen, Belgium and Holland, in order to enable them to compete with English coal. These privileges are readily assailable, if the companies are contumacious. While the state of the mines is most prosperous, the condition of the men is yearly more wretched.

Public feeling is becoming more and more pronounced in favor of the men. The paralysis of the iron and steel industries consequent upon the lack of a sufficient supply of coal intensifies the feeling of discontent existing outside of the coal district. In the event of failure of a speedy settlement of the trouble, the Government will convene a conference of employers of workmen, under a neutral president, which shall be employed to arbitrate on the differences.

In the Reichstag today, when the Aged Workman's Insurance Bill came up for a third reading, Prince Bismarck made an acrid speech. He said he was not surprised that Socialists, the Freisinnige party and Poles, opposed the bill, but he had not expected that the Conservatives would assume a hostile attitude toward proposals affecting the innermost depths of the whole Empire.

In concluding he said: "I wish the bill to be disposed of before the next elections, for no one knows whether we shall have as much leisure next year as now."

THE SHORTS SUFFER.

ANOTHER DAY OF EXCITEMENT IN WALL STREET.

Operators Cinched by Villard's Manipulations of the Stock Market—Fight for the Oregon Transcontinental.

By Telegraph to The Times.

NEW YORK, May 18.—[By the Associated Press.] The stock market opened with a moderate volume of business. Oregon Transcontinental went up ½ of 1 per cent. The squeeze of the shorts in that stock still kept the chief interest in it, and immediately after the opening it began to rise rapidly and touched 55, an advance of 20 per cent. from last evening's price. From this there was a recession even more rapid than the advance, and the starting point was reached on the back track in less than ten minutes. At the highest figure there was a flood of stock offered, and the price dropped 5 per cent. at a time to 40. It later sold at 30, but there was a demand for many thousand shares at that figure, and it quickly moved back to 43, and at the close sold at 42.

The unlooked-for discovery of a big short interest in Oregon Transcontinental made the brokers anxious about short accounts in other stocks, and fears were everywhere expressed that the entire market was heavily oversold. This feeling was increased by the course of the St. Paul preferred, which advanced 5 per cent. on the attempt to cover short stock.

The buying fever extended to the Atchison and orders to cover the shorts in that stock caused it to advance sharply. Burlington moved up 2 per cent. Rock Island followed. The entire bear contingent left the street anxious about the future, and they will wait for Monday's opening with fear and trembling.

At Villard's office everything appeared to be quiet today, in marked contrast to the excitement at the Stock Exchange. Villard was not down. His private secretary explained that the excitement on the street was an outside matter, with which Villard had nothing to do. The fight for the control of the stock at the election is over, and Villard has 201,760 shares out of a total of 400,000. He added that there would be nothing new in the affairs of the company until the election at Portland, Or., in June.

The other party, to which belong Elijah Smith, Sidney Dillon, Frederick L. Ames and other well-known men, claim they hold a majority of the stock and that Villard cannot possibly vote 201,700 shares unless he has issued some of the remaining $10,000,000 of treasury stock in spite of the injunction.

The opposition issued a joint call for proxies this morning. It states that their policy will be in favor of an amicable arrangement with the Northern Pacific, St. Paul, Minneapolis and Manitoba, and Union Pacific roads, including its connecting line, the Oregon Railway and Navigation Company.

The Evening Post says the corner was undoubtedly brought about unintentionally. Primarily the contest for control of the property is responsible for it. Many of the biggest houses in the street thought when the buying for control was over the price would fall back, and they considered selling it for delivery after the closing of the books a safe speculation. This is what they did, and they now find that all floating stock has been bought for election purposes, and the owners of it do not intend to part with it. The shorts, in fact, cornered themselves.

Charged with Blackmail.

CHICAGO, May 18.—John S. Cosgrove and wife, Annie, were arrested by the Federal authorities on complaint of C. F. Smith of Los Angeles, Cal., who charged them with using the mails for purposes of blackmail. The authorities decline to give particulars, but say that the case is an important one.

Later the pair were released on their own recognizance, in bonds of $1000.

A Well of Turpentine.

The question is whether there is a natural reservoir or this well has been "salted" with the manufactured product.

Chicago's Murderous Asylum.

CHICAGO, May 18.—In the Insane Asylum investigation today Dr. Alexander of the asylum medical staff testified that she would advise the friends of any insane woman to keep her at home, no matter how violent. An Engine and Fifteen Laborers Go Through a Bridge Near Nashville, Tenn.—Several Lives Lost.

By Telegraph to The Times.

CHICAGO, May 18.—[By the Associated Press.] Proceedings designed to spread consternation in the ranks of confession-of-judgment holders and have a wide bearing in the commercial world were begun in the Federal Court today. The initiative was in the shape of a bill filed by 75 Eastern jewelry firms, the immediate object being to set aside confessions of judgment whereby half a dozen Chicagoans captured the assets of Clapp & Davies, wholesale jewelers here, who failed in 1887, with liabilities of over $300,000.

One day in April, 1887, the firm unexpectedly confessed judgment to five persons in Chicago to whom they claimed to owe $113,000. Executions were levied upon the stock, a receiver appointed and the property sold by him, it being purchased by the judgment holders for $101,000, an amount small enough to bar out all other creditors. Most of the creditors who got nothing and are now complaining, hold claims aggregating $175,000. They claim that the firm of Clapp & Davis for more than a year prior to its failure was hopelessly involved and the partners, notwithstanding their knowledge of this fact, recklessly and wrongfully continued their business and continued to buy goods from complainants on credit, doing so, it is claimed, in pursuance of a well-laid scheme of which the confessors of judgment were a party.

It is urged that these unlawful preferences were in direct violation of law as laid down by Justice Harlan of the United States Supreme Court in his recent decision in the case of White vs. Cotzhousen. The Court is asked to enjoin the receiver and declare Clapp & Davies's transfer of property a voluntary assignment for the benefit of all creditors.

If successful (so say the attorneys for complainants), this case will be the forerunner of a thousand more exactly similar in all important details. The principle of law on which complainants expect to gain their victory involves every failure that has taken place in Chicago in 13 years. If the decision by Justice Harlan is upheld, it will mean that the banks of Chicago must give up an untold amount which they have secured by such preferences. It is said that a prominent bank alone owes at least $1,500,000 of money thus obtained.

LYNCHING PARTIES.

They Meet with Varied Success in West and South.

KANSAS CITY, May 18.—[By the Associated Press.] The Journal's special from Beatrice, Neb., says: Chauncey West, a dealer in fruit trees, was shot and killed at a dance last night, by William Carson, a negro. The murderer was arrested, and tonight a mob of 1000 men is besieging the jail. Sheriff Davis ordered the crowd to disperse, but at 10 o'clock the mob was still there. A rope was secured and an attempt at lynching may follow.

MONROE (La.), May 18.—While the Sheriff of Caldwell parish was returning to Columbia last night with a negro who had been arrested for burglary he was met by a mob, who took the prisoner from his charge and hanged him to a tree.

NATCHEZ (Miss.), May 18.—At Harrisonburg last night a mob went to the jail to take out and lynch William Fighlman, a murderer. The Sheriff had a posse in the jail, and several volleys were exchanged before the mob dispersed. One man was killed and a number were slightly wounded.

THROUGH A BRIDGE.

Terrible Accident Near Nashville, Tenn.—Three Men Killed.

NASHVILLE (Tenn.), May 18.—[By the Associated Press.] A terrible accident occurred on the Lebanon branch of the Nashville, Chattanooga and St. Louis Railroad about nine miles from this city, this afternoon. The bridge across Stone River caught fire from a passing train. Seventeen men, two white and fifteen negroes, who were working on the road near by, went to the bridge and took an engine on it with the intention of extinguishing the fire with water from the tender. A span gave way, carrying the men and engine into the river fifty feet below. Engineer Morgan and Fireman Gribble White received serious injuries. Three of the negro laborers were killed and six injured dangerously.

BASE-BALL.

Record of Games in the East and West.

PHILADELPHIA, May 18.—[By the Associated Press.] The visitors were again defeated by the Philadelphias this afternoon in a well-contested game. Both pitchers were hit hard, but Buffinton was more effective when men were on bases. The Philadelphias' fielding was perfect. The attendance was 7500.

Score: Philadelphia, 5; Indianapolis, 4.

Batteries: Philadelphia, Buffinton and Clements; Indianapolis, Doyle and Myers.

WASHINGTON, May 18.—Eleven innings were necessary to decide the game this afternoon, and the Chicagos won on Ryan's single base on balls and two sacrifice hits. Interest was at fever heat all through the contest, and the two clubs forged ahead of one another four times. Van Haltren's work in all respects was the feature.

Score: Washington, 13; Chicago, 14.

Batteries: Washington, Haddock and Ebright; Chicago, Gumbert, Dwyer and Sommers.

NEW YORK, May 18.—The Giants were beaten by Pittsburgh this afternoon after a lively and sharply-played game. Poor base running by O'Rourke and Whitney and a bungling play by Ward did much to lose the game.

Score: New York, 2; Pittsburgh, 3.

Batteries: New York, Welch and Brown; Pittsburgh, Staley and Miller.

BOSTON, May 18.—Good batting and indifferent fielding characterized the game this afternoon between the Boston and Cleveland clubs.

CINCINNATI, May 18.—Cincinnati, 7; Baltimore, 5.

LOUISVILLE, May 18.—Columbus, 3; Louisville, 13.

KANSAS CITY, May 18.—Kansas City, 15; Athletics, 8.

ST. LOUIS, May 18.—St. Louis, 3; Brooklyn, 5. Eleven innings.

SAN FRANCISCO 5—OAKLAND 3.

SAN FRANCISCO, May 18.—After nearly ten years of steady pitching for San Francisco nines Incell appeared at the Haight-street grounds this afternoon in the Oaklands' uniform. It was quite a surprise to the audience, but he received an ovation nevertheless. Meegan and Sweet were the battery for the San Franciscos, and Hardie and Incell for the Oaklands. The game was one of the best seen here for some time, and was won by the home team by a score of 5 to 3.

STOCKTON TAILS THE PROCESSION.

STOCKTON, May 18.—The Stocktons by reckless playing today gave the game to Sacramento, and took their place at the tail end of the procession. The Sacramentos changed pitchers from Hapeman to Burke. Behan dislocated a finger in the first inning and went into the field, Howard covering second. Score: Sacramentos, 8; Stocktons, 4.

The California Fruit Union's Plan for the Coming Season—Wreck of the British Ship Enchanter.

By Telegraph to The Times.

EUGENE (Or.), May 18.—[By the Associated Press.] The mail carrier from Florence, 70 miles from here on the coast, brings news that 11 of the survivors of the wrecked Alaskan are now there. After leaving the ship they were tossed about by the storm for some time. They finally came near land near Cape Perpetue, about 14 miles north of Suislaw harbor, on Thursday noon. They were unable to land their boat on account of huge breakers. They therefore tried to swim ashore. All were successful except one, who lost his life. During the time they were out all they had to eat was six cans of peaches.

Four survivors are at the house of a farmer near the Cape and are quite ill from drinking salt water. Six of the survivors are at Florence destitute, being cared for by the people of that town. The eleventh man is on his way to Eugene and will arrive Sunday noon, when full particulars will be learned.

A RESCUED CREW.

Loss of the Enchanter—Her Captain's Story.

VICTORIA (B. C.), May 18.—[By the Associated Press.] The British bark Wanlock, 124 days from London, arrived this afternoon. She brought the shipwrecked crew of the ship Enchanter, Capt. Scott, who told the following story: The Enchanter left Sydney on the 30th of December for Panama with a cargo of coal in longitude 105° west, and latitude °35 south, when heavy weather set in. The ship became dismasted, and lost her rudder. Jury masts and a temporary rudder were rigged up, but the ship was strained in a heavy sea and commenced to leak badly. This was about April 1st. On the 16th, after all hope of saving the ship was abandoned, the crew were preparing to take to the boats, when the bark Walloon, from London to Victoria, hove in sight. Besides the captain of the Enchanter, the rescued people are the captain's wife and daughter and a crew of 11 men. The captains of the two vessels were old friends, and the meeting was a joyful one.

The Enchanter was a wooden vessel of 479 tons register and was built in Dundee in 1851. She was owned by Capt. Scott, who valued her at $2500. She was partly insured.

THE FRUIT UNION.

New Arrangements for Shipments to the East.

SAN FRANCISCO, May 18.—[By the Associated Press.] The fruit-growers have arranged to send their product east by special trains. These trains will all be made up at Sacramento, and approximate passenger time is promised. The California Fruit Union is making preparations with independent fruit-growers to operate a Golden Gate fruit train. The train will be open to all growers and shippers of fruits to the East, the only restriction being that fruits sent on it must be sold at auction to preserve uniformity of prices. Shippers can select their own agents East. It is thought that by systemizing arrangements good prices, quick service and wide distribution of California products will be secured.

THE TROMBONE

Still Using the Attached Material—The Fire.

There was no change in the condition of affairs at the Tribune office yesterday. The force still occupied the regular quarters last night, and used the material which the Sheriff is supposed to have under attachment. It is stated that the attached property will be knocked down under the Sheriff's hammer next Saturday provided the Sheriff does his duty as prescribed by law. Whether he will be able to get the consent of the Tribune Company to take charge of it long enough to make the sale remains to be seen.

As regards the latest Tribune fire (last Thursday morning) there have been some developments in a quiet way. One is that H. T. Payne, the quondam business manager of the concern, was telephoned immediately upon the discovery of the fire, but did not think it worth his while to come up town. It is also developed that another man prominently connected with the Tribune Company was seen to issue from the basement shortly before the fire wearing an unusual suit of clothes. Further developments and, possibly events, may be looked for shortly.

UNITED STATES PRISONER,

And the San Diego District Attorney Interfered.

Some days ago an indictment was found in the Northern District of California against J. B. King, on a charge of having taken letters which did not belong to him out of the postoffice. The indictment was sent to United States Commissioner Van Dyke, in this city, and he issued a warrant last Thursday, and Deputy Marshal Hayes was sent to San Diego to look King up, as it was reported that he was holding forth in that city. Yesterday United States District Attorney Denis received a dispatch from Hayes, stating that he had arrested his man, but that before he could get him out of town the District Attorney of San Diego county sued out a writ of habeas corpus. The deputy asked for instructions, and Mr. Denis sent another deputy down last night, and will follow himself today. He does not know what to think of the action of the District Attorney of San Diego, as it is very plain that he exceeded his authority when he tampered with a United States prisoner.

EAST SIDE.

A Various Budget of Home Happenings.

The 2-year-old son of W. H. Pierce was lost yesterday, and for a time there was a very anxious mother at his home on North Truman street, but the boy was found at last, down near the Downey-avenue bridge, by Officer McKeag of Lawson's patrol.

Mrs. Speady of North Griffin avenue was thrown from her carriage while out driving last Friday, and was considerably bruised, though not seriously injured.

The apparatus for the Phillips Club gymnasium has arrived, and was being put in place and used by the boys last evening.

Only one arrest—a drunk—reported from the East Side station this week.

The Young People's Christian societies of East Los Angeles will hold a union prayer meeting on next Wednesday evening in the Baptist, not Presbyterian Church, as was reported, corner of Workman and Hawkins streets. The exercises will begin at 7:39 oclock, sharp. Subject, "Christian Fearlessness."

The good people of the Asbury M.E. Church Sunday-school outdid themselves again yesterday, as usual, in their picnic at Verdugo Park, with over 400 people in attendance. The train left the Downey-avenue depot of the Glendale line at a little past 9 a.m., with the two regular coaches full to overflowing, two extra flat-cars full, and several on the engine. It made the run to the entrance of the picnic grounds in about an hour, where the people and their lunch baskets were deposited, and the shady grove was soon alive with juvenile humanity, who took prompt possession of swings, "teeters," benches and shady nooks so generously furnished by the management of the park, represented by their gentlemanly secretary, Albert P. Cross. At a little past noon all present sat down to tables loaded with the good things from the hands of the ladies of the school. Supt. Shaw, Assistant Superintendent Clemie Gay, Dr. Morris, Messrs. Sovereign, Tubbs, Langworthy, Miss Cox, Mesdames Morris, Spear, Sovereign, Langworthy and others spared no pains in making the event enjoyable to all. After the tables were cleared music was indulged in by some; others strolled about the grove, and all were free in declaring the joys of the day.

At 4 p.m. one train brought part of the company home and the remainder came down on the next train at 5 p.m.

Mention is due to Conductor C. G. Wilkinson, Engineer F. W. Madison and Fireman T. A. Martin for the uniform courtesy and patience exhibited by them in managing the crowded trains. There was not a single accident to record for the day.

A very interesting entertainment was given at the Gelcich Post campfire in Woods's Hall on Friday evening last. Comrade Jones opened with a few remarks, and was followed in the opening prayer by Rev. Cox of the Asbury M.E. Church, and the following programme was given to an appreciative audience.

Instrumental trio, selection from "Traviata"—Master Frank Fox, and Mr. and Mrs. H. S. Knapp.

Vocal duet, "A Whispering Hope"—Mr. Partriage and Miss Loule Irish.

Vocal solo, "Tobacco, Ho! Ho!"—Miss Ruth Atherton.

Recitation—Miss Julia Crawford.

Song and chorus, "Hail Our Banner"—Mr. and Mrs. D. B. Sumner, Mr. and Mrs. H. S. Knapp and Frank Strathorn.

Vocal solo—Mrs. Stella Matthews.

Vocal solo—Conrad Lycos.

Instrumental trio, "Far Away"—Mr. and Mrs. Knapp and Master Frank Fox.

Speech—D. G. Dexter.

The programme was followed by remarks by Rev. Cox, M. F. Tarble, T. F. Laycock and others. The instrumental solo, "Hail, Our Banner," was introduced for the first time on the Pacific Coast at this entertainment. After the exercises refreshments were served.

The Accident at Tehachepi.

GIRARD (Cal.), May 18.—[To the Editor of THE TIMES.] I would not have the general public carry the impression such as is stated in THE TIMES of Friday, 17th, regarding the "Almost Another Tehachepi Disaster," that the Southern Pacific people were not ready and willing to extend to their passengers every conceivable comfort during their three long, dreary hours of waiting. And in justice to the Southern Pacific people and myself I wish to say that only two passengers applied for blanks, that they might inform their waiting friends. Mr. Bishop of Fort street, Los Angeles, who paid for his message, and it was forwarded promptly, and another gentleman, who wanted his message sent free, and on being informed—politely, too—that the Western Union and the railroad company were separate corporations, and that his message would have to be paid for, he withdrew and was seen no more. People who cannot pay their way as they go should remain at home.

Didn't Have a Badge.

Last night about 8:30 o'clock a hackdriver named Matson was arrested by Officer Craig, at the corner of Bellevue avenue and New High street, for a violation of the ordinance by not wearing a badge, as is especially provided. Matson deposited $5 bail, and was released. Chief Burns says that this ordinance will be strictly enforced, as will also the provision in regard to numbering vehicles, which states that the number must be painted plainly on the lamps, the figures to be three inches long. All hack-owners have been notified, and after time has been allowed for making the necessary alterations, if they are not done, the owners and drivers will be arrested every day until the law is complied with. There has been a good deal of complaint about the difficulty of identifying hacks, when there has been cause for complaint, and the Chief says that he intends to have this remedied.

Going Too Far.

SAN BERNARDINO.

THE COUNTY-SEAT REMOVAL SCHEME.

What Is Being Done—Public Sentiment—Rivals for the Location of a New Courthouse—Opposing Interests—The Turn Bezirk.

SAN BERNARDINO, May 18.—[Correspondence of THE TIMES.] The sleepy denizens of this city are liable to wake from their slumbers some fine morning and find that while they have slept a stealthy foe in the shape of a small suburb has spirited away their courthouse. Wild rumors, tame, rumors—in fact rumors of all sorts—have been flying about in every direction during the past fortnight respecting the great and all-absorbing question of removing the county seat and the erection of a new Courthouse.

In view of these things, your correspondent has thought it advisable to look into this matter and see just what there was in it, and lay the facts before the public.

The origin of this movement reaches back to the last session of the Legislature and found its nucleus in Senator McComas's bill to cut out of Los Angeles and San Bernardino counties a new county, with Pomona as the geographical center and county seat. The advocates of the McComas measure argued that San Bernardino county was large enough to make half a dozen good-sized counties, and that since a new courthouse was inevitable at no distant day, it would be a good time to split up and have one new county building at Pomona. The bill failed to pass, and so the county remains intact. But the very fact that our dilapidated courthouse afforded an argument in favor of county division was seized upon by the local press, after the measure had failed, to urge the Board of Supervisors to submit the question of voting bonds for the construction of a new building which would be adequate for the public needs and a safe repository for the records of the county. These editors saw—or thought they saw—that if the board could be induced to submit a proposition of this kind to the people the chances were that it would carry, and the building would probably be under way before the next meeting of the Legislature, and thus remove one feature of contention from any measure that might arise in that body looking to county division in the future. It was never dreamed that there would be any rivalry outside of the corporate limits of San Bernardino as a location for the new courthouse, and so the morning sheet fairly teemed with cogent and alliterative reasons why we should have a new county building. The literary genius who tops out the editorial tripod of that paper saw all manner of impending calamities contingent upon our using the old building much longer. He saw our records going up in smoke and fire. He saw death—grim death—lurking in the musty and decaying walls and corridors of that old, dilapidated structure called out of courtesy a courthouse. There was no doubt as to the inadequacy of the building in every respect. Then why put off the proposition for a new one? The county was rich and prosperous, out of debt, with over $200,000—not in the treasury, but belonging to it. No sooner was this question raised than the milk-and-water organ of scale-bug notoriety began clamoring for some landed philanthropist to come forward with a proposition for a new site, and among the first to be advocated by that sheet was one from a syndicate headed by a gentleman at Riverside, and was situated south of First street and outside of the corporation. Thus Colton saw that if San Bernardino was bidding for an outside location she would enter the ring, and it was done. If a proposition to come south of First street would be entertained, the Coltonites said "maybe the board might consider a site a little further south—about as far, for instance, as three miles," which would reach the corporate limits of Colton. In the meantime, a petition was circulated here, to which your correspondent appended his John Hancock, praying the Board of Supervisors to submit the question of voting bonds to the amount of $300,000 for building a new courthouse. The prayer was denied by the board, and then it was that the citizens of Colton called "that little meeting" for counsel as to the feasibility of making an open fight for the county seat. An organization was effected, funds were raised, and the work of circulating petitions soon after followed. This was all done so quietly and adroitly that few people outside of Colton knew really what was going on. When the newspapers here heard of it, they treated the whole matter as a huge joke, and heaped any amount of ridicule upon the projectors of the scheme. They now begin to realize that they have been deceiving themselves and their readers by this course, but have never printed the true state of affairs about the movement, and, above all, have never admitted its force and magnitude. I called upon the committee in charge at Colton yesterday and told them plainly that I wanted to get the facts in the case for publication; said that I had heard many conflicting reports as to their work and plans, and now I wanted the truth. This they agreed to give, expressing a willingness to answer any reasonable question bearing on the matter. I then asked for the law under which they were proceeding, and was referred to sections 11 and 12 of the County Government Act in the Political Code, approved March 14, 1883, and since the order seems plainer by reading 12th section first, I give them in that way. This section says: "Whenever there shall be presented to the Board of Supervisors of any county a petition signed by the qualified electors of such county, in numbers equal to a majority of the votes cast at the preceding general election, praying for the submission of the question of the removal of the county seat of such county, it shall be the duty of the Board of Supervisors, by due proclamation, to submit the question of such removal of the county seat at the next general election, to the qualified electors of such county.

"The election shall be conducted and the returns canvassed in all respects as provided by law for the canvassing the returns thereof. But a proposition of removal of any county seat shall not be submitted in the same county more than once in four years." And section 11 says further: "No county seat shall be removed unless two-thirds of the qualified electors of the county voting on the proposition at a general election shall vote in favor of such removal."

I next asked for a copy of the petition, and was given the following:

PETITION.

To the Honorable Board of Supervisors of the County of San Bernardino, State of California: We the undersigned, qualified electors of the county of San Bernardino and State of California, would most respectfully ask and pray for the submission of the question of the removal of the county seat of the said county of San Bernardino, State of California, as is provided by law, and your petitioners will ever pray, etc.

It will be observed that this petition does not designate any place to which the signers desire the county seat removed. That question is left open. The committee claim that they do not know just how many duplicates of this petition are in the hands of solicitors, but from what I could gather in a general conversation with these people it is safe to say that more than 25 are being circulated in various parts of the county, and all of them are being signed in greater or less numbers. In all the towns along the line of the Southern Pacific Railroad, through the county and the towns and neighborhoods south of it, the people are generally favoring the transfer. The sentiment in Riverside, Temescal, Rincon, East Riverside and South Riverside is said to be very nearly a unit in favor of the move, with a large proportion of Ontario, South Cucamonga, Chino, Beaumont and Banning sharing in the same feeling. But what surprised your correspondent most was to learn that a large number of persons on the desert were signing these petitions; and what was more surprising still was to learn that many signers reside at Highlands and Redlands. There is nothing modest or diffident about these solicitors. Petitions are being circulated right here in San Bernardino, and I was informed that 300 names—mostly of the poor and laboring classes—had signed these petitions. From what I saw and heard, I make no doubt that the requisite number of names has already been secured to obtain the submission of the question to the people. So far all has been comparatively smooth sailing with the advocates for removal, but the tug of war will come when the question is to be voted upon. Then the Coltonites will meet "foemen worthy of their steel," and since they must secure a two-third majority to accomplish their object, it will be seen that they have undertaken a pretty large contract. It is evident, however, that they mean to leave no stone unturned to accomplish their purposes. At the proper time they will come up with a proposition to donate an eligible site and an agreement to construct a large and commodious county building free of charge to the taxpayers of the county. These things will have their weight, and so it behooves San Bernardino to look to her laurels in this respect, for the distance is small between the two places, and the inconvenience, so far as travel is concerned, will be slight with the country population even to the north and east of here, while it would accommodate people to the south of Colton and along the line of the Southern Pacific. Sentiment and gush will cut but a sorry figure in the premises, and the sooner this people realize it the better for them. Some people affect to believe that the citizens here care but little about the matter—i.e. the property-owners—and argue that the two places will ultimately be united into one, and under one municipality become a great commercial metropolis. I do not share in the idea expressed in the first part of the proposition, although I readily see how feasible, even certain, the latter part of it is. There is no time fixed, as well as I could learn, when the combined petition will be presented to the board, but it is safe to say that it will not be before July 1st, and in the meantime other important developments respecting this matter may be expected. It is alleged in a local print today that the Southern Pacific Company is taking a hand in the contest, favorably, of course, to Colton, and stands ready to chance $150,000 on the scheme, but whether this is true or not I cannot say. I think that company favors the project, and so does the motor road company, but to what extent cannot be foretold. Other features of this movement will be given in future correspondence.

THE TURN BEZIRK.

This city presents a gay and festive appearance today. Banners, flags, streamers and bunting are displayed in all the principal streets of the place, and adorn all the leading business houses and many of the private residences. Huge evergreens are fastened to the columns of many of the business houses, and the town is in a general bustle and hurrah over the coming festivities. These things are done in honor of the Bezirks Turnfest of Southern California, which begins here this evening and continues till Monday night next.

While I write, delegations are coming in from San Diego, Riverside and as far east as The Needles, on the Colorado River. The Los Angeles contingent, accompanied with a band, will arrive at 6:30 p.m., and a procession will be formed and a march made down Third street to Armory Hall, where the masses will listen to orations by President Singer and Dr. René. Fell Backward.

Yesterday afternoon shortly after 5 o'clock E. L. Light, an old gentleman, aged 65 years, met with a severe accident, which came very near resulting fatally. Mr. Light was leaning against the railing in front of the excavation at Jerry Illich's old stand, on Main street, reading a paper, when it gave way, and he fell backward a distance of about 10 or 12 feet, cutting the scalp and breaking his collar bone. The patrol wagon was sent for, and Mr. Light was taken to the police station, where Dr. Wing attended to his injuries. He was then taken to the residence of his son-in-law, E. F. Kubel, on Beaudry street. Mr. Light's injuries are very serious on account of his age, and it will be some time before he is able to get about.

PASADENA NEWS.

A MAD COW MUTILALES TWO PEOPLE.

Off to the Peak—City Matters—In the Sanctuaries—A Lively Sideshow—Here and There—Local and Personal Mention.

PASADENA, May 18.—[Correspondence of THE TIMES.] The City Board of Trustees met this morning at 10 o'clock in regular session, every member excepting Councilman Young being in attendance.

On motion of McLean, the proposition of the Pasadena Hardware Company to purchase city bonds to the amount of $3500 was accepted and the president of the board authorized to deliver the same on the part of the city.

Clerk Cambell reported that the financial statement of the city would be ready for publication in a few days. He was, however, prepared to submit a verbal one, but on motion it was decided to refer the same to the Committee on Auditing and Finance, without reading.

W. B. Van Kirk, commander of John F. Godfrey Post of the G.A.R. submitted a written petition in behalf of that organization, asking for an allowance from the city for a proper observance of Memorial day. On motion of Councilman McLean $50 was appropriated from the city treasury for that occasion.

A budget of petitions was next heard. The Blinn Lumber Company was granted permission to erect a small shed on its property.

F. A. Marston asked for a rebate on taxes to the amount of $28.80, which was referred.

The Council granted Mrs. G. B. Canfield permission to erect a frame dwelling-house in the vicinity of Fair Oaks and Belleview avenues.

P. G. Wooster submitted a written protest against allowing the public to cross his lot in front of the Webster block now used as a street in reaching the Santa Fé depot. The document was ordered preserved in the archives of the city.

The question of the purchase of a fire engine was brought up by Councilman Townsend, but as the committee had not prepared any report further discussion was stopped.

The proposition from J. A. Blattenburg to sell the city a lot on North Fair Oaks, near the Boston grocery, was heard and referred. The price asked was $150 per front foot.

Bids for furnishing the city with material for sewer construction were opened and referred. The bid of J. S. Mills was accepted, he being the lowest bidder.

The petition of C. W. Benton to use a portion of Colorado street in the construction of the Strong building was heard and five feet of that thoroughfare allowed. Adjourned.

A VICIOUS COW.

A very sad and distressing accident, resulting almost with the instant death of one of the unfortunate victims, occurred shortly after 1 o'clock this afternoon. At that hour a band of Quakers were returning to their homes from the quarterly meetings now being held at the Friends' Church, on the corner of Marengo avenue and Mountain street, when a vicious cow coming up the avenue darted into the crowd, spreading confusion and a general scattering everywhere. Mrs. Williams, a lady 78 years of age, whose home is at El Modino, was walking along arm in arm with two companions, when the infuriated beast rushed upon her, striking her to the ground and injuring her pretty badly. The animal, after the attack, continued in her maddened course, and in another moment ran into Jonathan Bailey, knocking him to the ground and trampling upon him. Besides the abovve, Wilson Kirk and a man whose name was not learned were knocked down but not seriously hurt.

The particulars of the accident were learned by the TIMES reporter, who, in company with Marshal McLean, arrived on the scene shortly afterward. Mr. Bailey had been removed to the residence of O. Burlingame, who lives right opposite, where a cot was hastily procured, and the injured man placed gently upon it. Drs. Dixon of Whittier and Grinnell of this city were in attendance, when the reporter arrived, who found the patient resting quietly, but suffering internally from the severity of the contusions. An examination was made, when it was found that the collar bone had been broken, an ugly gash received on the forehead and bruises in other parts of the body. Mr. Bailey, the injured gentleman, is a director of the Pickering Land and Water Company, and was injured several years ago during an encounter in driving out the Chinese from the town where he then lived. At 6 o'clock this evening, when the reporter left, after his second visit, the patient was much improved, and strong hopes are entertained for his recovery. Mrs. Williams, after the accident, was removed to the residence of Mr. Mulford, in the immediate vicinity. The reporter called at the house of the friends with whom she was staying, and found the aged patient sitting in an old-fashioned arm chair, trembling violently from the shock. In her hand she clutched a damp rag, with which she would occasionally bathe a bad contusion under the chin.

A bad bruise was also noticed under the left eye, but beyond these few scratches Mrs. Williams escaped injuries of any consequence.

The accident happened in this wise: A herd of cattle were being driven to a slaughter-house in the Arroyo, up through Marengo avenue, when a Texas cow broke loose from the band, and charging northward, made a break for the crowd, with the above result.

The excitement had reached this point, when neighbors, who were told of the onslought, hunted for their guns and a curious crowd at once collected. The cow dashed over lots and through hedges, but was finally brought to the ground by a ball from a Winchester in the hands of one of the herders.

IN THE SANCTUARIES.

The weather of today predicts an unusually large attendance at the several churches tomorrow. At the Methodist Church the pulpit will be occupied by the pastor, Rev. P. F. Bresee, D.D., the morning subject being, "Worry or Trust," and for the evening, "Christ Stooping and Writing in the Earth." The pulpit in the Universalist Church will be filled in the morning by the pastor, followed by the reception of members. In the evening Miss Henrietta G. Moore will give a temperance address under the auspices of the W.C.T.U. Under the direction of the Methodist Church South, a Sunday-school will be organized in Williams's Hall tomorrow afternoon at 2:30 o'clock. Rev. Horace M. Dubois of Trinity Church, Los Angeles, will preach one hour later, followed by the organization of a Methodist church, to be under the pastorate of Rev. J. A. Harmon. The young men's meeting in the Wooster block at 3 o'clock will be led by D. J. MacPherson.

At the Baptist Church the pulpit in the morning will be occupied by J. B. Barker of Santa Ana, and in the evening by Rev. C. E. Harris. The pulpit in the Presbyterian Church will be occupied by Rev. N. B. Remick of Troy, N. Y., both morning and evening. Services in the other churches as usual.

A NOVEL CIRCUS.

Another circus company, not down on the bill, played a sideshow engagement in a corral in the rear of Vore & Hoag's livery stable at 10 o'clock this morning. A young ostrich, the property of the ostrich farm, broke away from its fastenings this morning and strayed into the city. The bird was subsequently steered into the corral of the above gentlemen, where a large and curious crowd gathered to take a peep at the captured ostrich. The keeper turned up at 10 o'clock, and in his vain endeavor to lasso the bird furnished amusement to about three dozen people. Many persons climbed to the top of the fence, and there gave the keeper the benefit of their experience in lassoing wild animals. The bird, however, was finally caught and returned among his own of the flock.

LOCAL MENTION.

NEW CASES.

Two $20,000 Damage Suits Commenced.

Yesterday a $20,000 damage suit was begun by Bartolo Ballerino vs. L. M. Bigelow and John Doe Bigelow. The plaintiff alleges that on May 4th the defendants encouraged and persuaded a physically powerful man, named in the complaint as Richard Roe, to thump him with a seven-pound hammer. He alleges that he was bruised and beaten unmercifully by Richard Roe, and asks the damages stated.

L. J. Rose filed a complaint yesterday against Jan Jacobson, J. F. Church, George Peterson and L. P. Shriver. The plaintiff alleges that the defendants still owe $10,000 on a $16,250 contract for land, and prays that a time be given them in which to pay, after which if the amount due is not paid that they be foreclosed.

Suit was begun by L. W. Dennis vs. J. A. Cowell, N. Whittlesey and H. Dale to secure judgment for unpaid purchase money on a $5000 contract.

James M. Sappenfield brought suit against the Main Street and Agricultural Park Railroad Company for $20,000 damages. He was a street-car driver for the company, and alleges that he was injured November 22, 1888, while driving a car on Main street, between Ninth and Tenth streets. That he was allowed to drive a vicious horse that broke loose from the car. By the accident the car ran over him, crushed his leg so that it was necessary to amputate it, and injured his left arm.

Against a Reduction of Wages.

A meeting of employés of the Los Angeles Cable Railway Company was held last night to consider a proposed reduction of wages by the company, which they have understood is to be made. The meeting passed resolutions protesting against any reduction as unjust to themselves and the welfare of the city, and pledged the employés to use all honorable and fair means to have the wages retained at the present rates.

NEW MINING DISTRICT.

It is Called Saint Anthony and is in this County.

A new mining district has been opened in Los Angeles county, called the St. Anthony mining district. The projectors have kept the matter very quiet, and have perfected their arrangements without many outsiders knowing anything about it. The camp has been opened and 24 claims have been located. The district includes Iron Fork, Fish Fork, Benson's Fork, Prairie Fork and Mine Gulch. Mine Gulch heads in Little Baldy. The district is bounded on the east by the San Bernardino county line, but it is all in Los Angeles county. The district is 30 miles from the nearest railroad station, the Cajon Pass siding.

A TIMES reporter saw Maj. Mitchell yesterday who had just returned from the mining district, and obtained a description of the enterprise from him. The discoveries were made last fall by Mr. Vincent, and since that time the matter has gradually been worked up. There are placer and lode mines, and the ore is low grade. The men interested in developing the mines are San Francisco and Los Angeles men, and have an abundance of capital. A meeting was held May 4th, and Mr. Vincent was elected recorder. Last Thursday a ratification meeting was held, and the previous action approved. The party took with them an assayer's outfit and about 4500 pounds of stores. The ore is of that character which will take capital to develop the mines, and it is the purpose of the company to put in a mill for its reduction. There is plenty of water and fuel; enough water to develop a thousand horse-power.

Maj. Mitchell says that the camp is not a poor man's camp, and that they do not wish to create any mining excitement. The people who are interested believe they have found an abundance of low-grade ore, that will pay to work, and are preparing to go into the enterprise on a large scale.

The placer mines are a continuation of the San Gabriel River placers. It is somewhat difficult to go to the district. After leaving the railroad the way is by Lytle Creek to the divide, over the divide to the prairie and to Mine Gulch. There will be a further report from the district in a few days.

The Major heard that the Black Hawk Company was arranging to put in a 40-stamp mill in their mines in San Bernardino county, and that they have discovered the largest body of silver ore in Southern California. An English syndicate is reported as preparing to invest heavily in that district.

We Hear That the Rossmore has the reputation of giving the finest meals of any family hotel in the city, and at the most reasonable rates. The public should certainly patronize it.

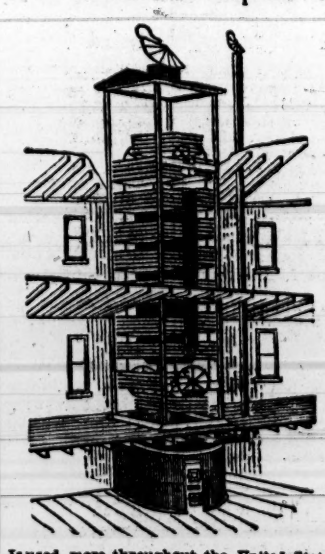
-:- The Williams Fruit Evaporator -:-



Is used more throughout the United States than any machine made. It will evaporate more fruit for the amount of tray surface with less labor than any other machine. Therefore it is the most economical and cheapest. Hundreds of them are in use throughout the Northern States for apples, while in the peach district in the Southern States there are ten to one of any other machine made. They are pronounced by those who use them, and have used others in connection, to be the only practical machine. Last year, 1888, seven were bought by different parties in Ventura county, this State, the same parties owning machines gave preference to the Williams, as others have done before them. I have a carload of these machines on hand now, but as there are several parties about purchasing now, as there will be more orders than I have machines now to fill, some orders will have to be filled at the factory, therefore send in your orders early. Send for catalogue and price-list to A. D. WILLIAMS,

RHEUMATISM AND NEURALGIA

These twin diseases cause untold suffering. Doctors admit that they are difficult to cure—so do their patients. Paine's Celery Compound has permanently cured the worst cases of rheumatism and neuralgia—so say those who have used it.

"Having been troubled with rheumatism at the knee and foot for five years, I was almost unable to get around, and was very often confined to my bed for weeks at a time. I used only one bottle of Paine's Celery Compound, and was perfectly cured. I can now jump around, and feel as lively as a boy." FRANK CAROLI, Eureka, Nevada.

WELLS, RICHARDSON & Co., Props., Burlington, Vt.

"Paine's Celery Compound has been a God-send to me. For the past two years I have suffered with neuralgia of the heart, doctor after doctor failing to cure me. I have now taken nearly four bottles of the Compound, and am free from the complaint. I feel very grateful to you." CHAS. H. LEWIS, Central Village, Ct.

Paine's Celery Compound

"I have been greatly afflicted with acute rheumatism, and could find no relief until I used Paine's Celery Compound. After using six bottles of this medicine I am now cured of rheumatic troubles." SAMUEL HUTCHINSON, So. Cornish, N. H.

Effects Lasting Cures.

Paine's Celery Compound has performed many other cures as marvelous as these,—copies of letters sent to any address. Pleasant to take, does not disturb, but aids digestion, and entirely vegetable; a child can take it. What's the use of suffering longer with rheumatism or neuralgia?

NOTABLE EVENTS THAT HAVE HAPPENED ON THIS DATE.

Marshal Soult's Great Picture Sale—The Canal of Languedoc—Anne Boleyn — Boswell — Rev. John Mason—The Archbishop of Canterbury.

One of the greatest picture sales on record was that of the collection of the late Marshal Soult, which occurred in Paris May 19, 1852. Murillo's picture, "Jesus and Child," brought $12,000; his "Peter in Bonds" was sold for $30,000; while the "Conception of the Virgin" brought the extraordinary price of $116,000. Marshal Soult's collection was obtained by the plunder of Spanish galleries during the Peninsula campaign. Fearing their loss at the outbreak of the revolution of 1848, the prudent Marshal had his paintings removed to Brussels, and some of the pictures were offered for sale in London. The "Conception of the Virgin" could then have been purchased for $30,000.

THE CANAL OF LANGUEDOC.

On May 19, 1681, the great canal of Languedoc, which connects the Mediterranean with the Atlantic, was completed. Its obvious utility had caused it to be projected as early as 1525, but it was reserved for Louis XIV. to complete it. Like the Erie canal, its effect upon commerce was prodigious. Riquetti, the great engineer who directed its construction, died before it was finished, but his place was supplied by his son.

ANNE BOLEYN,

second queen of Henry VIII., was beheaded for alleged conjugal unfaithfulness May 19, 1536. By the King's order four gentlemen of the court were arrested for criminal intimacy with the Queen, whose brother was also seized on a like charge. One of the four first arrested, named Smeaton, a musician, confessed his guilt. All were executed. The circumstance that the name of Anne Boleyn is identified with the Protestant cause has induced a belief in her innocence in subsequent times. The question of her guilt or innocence, however, can never be settled, as the record of the proceedings in the trial has not been preserved.

BOSWELL.

That the world knows so much about Dr. Samuel Johnson is due to the incomparable biography of James Boswell, a Scotch lawyer, who was born in Edinburgh in 1740, and removed to London, where he made the acquaintance of the Doctor in 1763. Although Boswell's work is the best piece of biography the world possesses, he is seldom spoken of with respect. He was vain, fickle and frivolous, and shortened his life by dissipation; still he must have been above contempt to have commanded the attention of Johnson and his contemporaries. Boswell's high spirits, drollery and self-revealing simplicity made him the delight of his friends. Add to this the literary power and industry required to write such a book as the life of Johnson, the author must have been a man of no mean order. That popular, mock-heroic poem, the "Duncaid," in which Pope immortalized all the fools of his time, suggested to Johnson the somewhat cruel remark that "Boswell was saved from immortality by being born subsequent to the production of that poem." Boswell died in London May 19, 1795.

THE REV. JOHN MASON,

rector of Water Stratford, England, who died May 19, 1694, was the victim of an extraordinary delusion. Though possessed of learning and ability he conceived the idea that he was the Elias appointed to proclaim Christ's second coming, and he was equally sure that the second advent would occur at Water Stratford. Mason attracted many converts, who sold all they had in order to settle in his parish. Their meetings were the scene of the wildest disorder, as formed in a ring they would dance, sing and shout in the most frantic demonstrations of joy. When the Duke of Buckingham and other noblemen forced their way into Mason's chamber, where he was lying ill with what the physicians called squinacy or quinzy, he declared that Christ would appear to judge the world on Whitsunday following. Death anticipated the fulfillment of his prophecy. The faith of his followers was not shaken by its falsity, and they declared upon his burial that he had risen from the dead. The exhumation of his body failed to convince them, and as late as 1710 they kept up their singular mode of worship, expressing the most violent emotions by singing, fiddling, dancing and the wildest of enthusiastic gestures and rapturous vociferation. Every vagabond and village fiddler that could be procured bore a part in the rude concert.

THE ARCHBISHOP OF CANTERBURY.

Next to Alfred the Great, the most conspicuous of the later Anglo-Saxons is St. Dunstan, Archbishop of Canterbury, who died May 19, 988. Born about 924, on the Island of Glastonbury, he became an enthusiastic student, and while still young, became a great favorite at the court of Athelstan, especially with the ladies, whom he assisted with their embroidery. But Dunstan soon became suspected of practicing magic, a suspicion which was strengthened by his harp discoursing music in the presence of a court lady when no hand was near. He was banished from court, and at the instance of his uncle, the Bishop of Winchester, became a monk. On the accession of Edmund in 940, Dunstan was recalled, and became a power at court. Under his guidance a navy of 300 vessels was built, and the inroad of the Danes entirely ceased. Appointed Archbishop of Canterbury in 955, he determined to suppress the married clergy, whom he vanquished by a trick. After two ineffectual meetings of the clergy, a third was held at Calne on the second floor of the building in 978. When it became Dunstan's turn to speak, he professed to commit his cause to the judgment of Christ. At these words the portion of the floor where his adversaries were standing gave way, and many of them were killed by the fall.

M. HILTON WILLIAMS,

M. D., M. C. P. S. C.,

Office, Hollenbeck Block, corner Second and Spring streets, Los Angeles, Cal.

All diseases of the respiratory organs treated by the most improved medical inhalations and the Compound Oxygen treatment, which has such a world-wide reputation in lung and nervous affections.

We take pleasure in announcing to the public that we combine the Compound Oxygen Treatment with our system of practice in the cure of asthma, bronchitis, consumption, dyspepsia, insomnia, sore throat, catarrh, rheumatism and nervous prostration.

The testimonials given below are very fair samples as to the time required for effecting cures in these troublesome cases:

LOS ANGELES, CAL., Nov 14, 1888.

This is to certify that I had been afflicted with asthma and emphysima of the lungs for about 24 years. My disease was contracted in the army. I had tried almost every known remedy, both here and in the East, but nothing ever gave me permanent relief until I tried Dr. Williams's Compound Oxygen and other remedies. It is only about one month since I began the treatment, and already I feel like another man. I was so bad that for days I could hardly breathe, but I do positively feel that I am cured. The difficulty of breathing has been entirely removed, and I feel as well as I ever did in every respect.

JOHN W HOIT.

Employe City Water Works, 235 Bellevue Avenue, Los Angeles.

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 16, 1888.

It is a source of gratification to me to be able to testify to the very satisfactory cure Dr. M. Hilton Williams has effected in my case with his Compound Oxygen and other inhalations. After suffering several years with catarrh of the head and throat, also bronchitis, which caused a very aggravating cough, I applied to Dr. Williams, who effected an entire cure in just two months from the time I began the treatment. I take pleasure in recommending Dr Williams as a Christian gentleman and a conscientious and skilful physician, whose cures seem almost marvelous in cases of consumption, asthma, bronchitis and catarrh.

MRS. L. A. THURSTON, 1422 Temple st., Los Angeles, Cal.

I have seen so many of these cases cured that I do not consider any case hopeless unless both lungs are seriously involved. Even then the inhalations aid in dissolving the mucus and in contracting and healing the cavities which nothing else can do with the same success. The very best references from those already cured.

CONSULTATION FREE.

Those who desire to consult with me in regard to their cases had better call at my office for consultation and examination, but, if impossible to do so, can write for a copy of my Medical Treatise, containing a list of questions. Address

SOCIAL DOINGS.

WARM WEATHER CAUSES PEOPLE TO KEEP QUIET.

Several Weddings in High Life—Engagement Notes—A "High Tea" at Mrs. Mansfield's—Moonlight Parties and Afternoon Teas—Balls and Social Clubs—Notes and Personals.

Warm weather has set in, and that may have something to do with the inactivity which has been noticeable all along the society line. Weddings have been rather scarce, although several events have been announced which should have taken place last week.

WEDDINGS AND ENGAGEMENTS.

Last Monday evening rather a notable wedding took place at the residence of Col. Walter S. Moore, 503 Figueroa street. The high contracting parties were Mrs. I. M. Cook, sister to Mrs. Col. Moore and Mrs. Walter Maxwell, and I. H. Polk of the United States Land Office. The performance was conducted by Rev. Dr. W. J. Chichester, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church. After partaking of a magnificent lunch the young couple took their departure on the night train for San Diego, and will spend their honeymoon at the Coronado Hotel.

At 9 o'clock Tuesday night Miss May E. McCarthy and George E. McClellan were united in marriage at the Cathedral by Rev. Father Adam. Only the friends of the parties were present. The happy couple will make Los Angeles their future home.

On Tuesday at 4 p.m., in the First Baptist Church, R. L. Dozier and Miss Lizzie Sturgess were united in marriage. A number of friends of the high contracting parties were present. The contracting parties were escorted to the pulpit by Gavin Witherspoon and Miss Alice Edwards, Dr. J. A. Cronkhite and Miss Evangeline Sutton, Dr. Quinten Burge and Miss Kate Fleming, Hubert Miles and Miss Annie Cronkhite. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Daniel Read, and was most impressive. The happy couple took the train for Santa Barbara, where they will spend their honeymoon.

At Ventura on Wednesday last Deputy Constable H. Walbridge of the city and Miss Carrie Johnson of Santa Cruz were united in marriage. They have taken up their residence at the Ramona on Third and Spring streets.

The engagement of Rev. W. L. Young of the Boyle Heights Presbyterian Church to Miss L. Wartz is announced to take place soon.

CARD OF THANKS.

At a regular meeting of the Young Peoples Society of the Ascension Church, Boyle Heights, held Saturday May 11th, the following preambles and resolution were unanimously adopted and ordered incorporated in the minutes:

WHEREAS, it has been the aim of this society to advance the interests of our church; and,

WHEREAS, it was found to be impossible for us to make a sufficient number of articles in the brief time before the entertainment takes place in order to make it a success; therefore be it

Resolved, that we tender our sincere thanks to Mr. Loeb of The City of Paris, Mr. Hamburger of the People's Store, Mr. Benchley of the Kan-Koo store, Mr. Duncan of the Silver House, Mr. Frank Coulter of the B. F. Coulter dry-goods house, and Messrs. Hellman & Co. of Temple block for the generous manner in which they assisted us.

The entertainments will be held at Hyan's block, corner of East First and Bailey streets, on Wednesday and Thursday evenings, May 22d and 23d, and an enjoyable time is assured all who attend.

A MUSICAL SOIREE.

Last Monday evening, at the Los Angeles University, the pupils of the musical department of that institution gave a most enjoyable entertainment to a large and critical audience.

The entertainment was in every way a success, and reflected high credit upon the instructors and managers of that department, the Misses Emma and Kate Rider. This is only one of the many musicales which have been given by this department of the University, and their creditability is shown by the fact that they always draw a crowded house and that not only those in the vicinity of the college but many music-loving people from the city also attend. It is not necessary to comment upon each piece separately, but the following is the programme as rendered:

March—Los Angeles University Orchestra.
Piano duet, "Lucia di Lammermoor" (Vilbac)—Misses Burgess and Hawkins.
Solo, "Rustling Leaves," op. 68 (Lange)—Mr. Harry L. Martin.
Violin solo arioso (Schneider)—Mr. Lloyd Greene.
Solo, "Tarantelle" op. 18 (S. B. Mills)—Miss May Phelps.
Guitar solo, "Sebastopol"—Mr. Henry Klaproth.
Piano duet, "Serenata" (Mozkowski)—Misses Gird and Millard.
Solo, "Last Hope" (Gottschalk)—Miss Gertrude Johnson.
Violin solo, selections from "Martha"—Mr. Arthur Smith.
Solo, "Home, Sweet Home" (as waves in a storm)—Miss Lucile Roberts.
Song, with orchestral accompaniment, 'Sleep, My Child" (Rider)—Miss Rider.

PROF. LOEB'S MUSICALE.

There was a pleasant gathering at the residence of Prof. Loeb yesterday afternoon, it being a charming musicale given by the pupils of that gentleman. Those present were: Julia, Jennie and Lena Joseph, Francis Goldwater, Helen Munday, Miss Bertha Jacoby, —— Jacoby, Hortense Hellman, Camilla Hellman, Rachel Cohn, Mattie Harris, Adel Weil, Tomie Raines, Louis Nordlinger.

E. Germain rendered selections from Rigoletto, finely. Hortense and Theresa Levy played duet selections from Martha, elegantly. Little Helen Castyle pleased all with "Bridal March" from Lohengrin; Valse Rococo was played by Louise Pellessier; Tillie Loeb gave "Linda di Chamouni" fantasie in excellent style. Miss Hella Meyer rendered some of Mendelssohn's songs without words, very artistic. Miss Leah Hellman, selection "La Tragona" was finely executed. After some words of advice in regards to practicing and musical etiquette by Prof. Loeb, the pupils took their departure.

A "HIGH TEA."

[illegible] was given by Mrs. Gov. Mansfield on Thursday last from 3 until 6 at her residence at the corner of Hill and Fourth. The lovely rooms were darkened and every glimmer of sunshine excluded; the chandeliers were lighted and a soft, warm glow was shed from them throughout the different apartments. Flowers in generous profusion brightened the rooms and filled them with fragrance. In the dining-room some half dozen tables were spread, where a most dainty and inviting repast was served. to the guests as they arrived. During the hours designated there was a constant tide of visitors, some in elaborate costumes and others in the permissible carriage dress. Mrs. Mansfield dispensed her hospitality with the graceful cordiality so characteristic of the lady, and her reception was one of the most enjoyable of the season.

AT THE ST. NICHOLAS.

One of the most delightful parties of the season was given at the St. Nicholas Tuesday evening. Dancing began at 8:30, and those who participated pronounced it enjoyable in the extreme. Misses Stanton, Connell and Mordecai acquitted themselves with distinction in their efforts to make it pleasant for those in attendance. Messrs. Doane and Goodrich, the genial proprietors, spared no expense or pains to make their social a success. Among those present were: Mr. and Mrs. E. L. Stanton, Mr. and Mrs. Carscaddon, Mr. and Mrs. N. B. Carter, Mr. and Mrs. Gromall, Mr. and Mrs. Phillips, Mr. and Mrs. Winfield, the Misses Pendleton, Flemming, Potter, Howell, Goodhue, Kimbal, Eames, Rees, Gardner, Brown, Carter, Messrs. L. A. Mordecai, G. W. Connell, O. W. Childs, Jr., Boynton, Bush, Hicks, Stevens, Hoyle, Fitzgerald, Devan, White and Richardson.

UNITY SOCIAL.

Thursday evening the ladies of the Unity Church gave a very pleasant entertainment at their unfurnished church edifice, on Seventh street, near Fort. At 7:30 o'clock an "introduction march" to promote sociability opened the entertainment. The following programme was carried out: Song, "Good Night," by Mr. Osgood, violin and piano accompaniment by Mr. and Mrs. Kutner; recitation, "Mother Hubbard's Sermon," by Mrs. Carey; vocal duet, "Maybells and Flowers," by Mrs. Parsons and Miss Betts; piano duet, Miss Laux and Miss Betts; song, "Waiting," by Mrs. Stella Matthews; recitation, "Little Joe," by Little Grace Hersey; piano solo, Miss Betts; song, "Let Me Dream Again," Mrs. Wiseman; guitar solo, Prof. de Loano.

A UNIQUE ENTERTAINMENT.

A very unique entertainment was given Friday afternoon at an informal reception by Mrs. John Kiefer, Grand avenue. It consisted of a recital by Helen Mar Bennett, the charming elocutionist, assisted by her two little pupils, Lillie Sargent and Ethel Stewart. Miss Bennett's recitations are always entertaining, and the little girls reflect infinite credit upon her ability. These entertainments are quite the thing East, but this is the first one given here. Among those present were noticed: Mrs. Edwards, Mrs. Rives, Mrs. Stowell, Mrs. Brown, Mrs. Taggart, Mrs. Guinn, Mrs. Hamilton, Mrs. Stewart, Mrs. Barr, Mrs. Sargent, and Miss Guinn and little Hazel Edwards.

THE REEVES RECEPTION.

A grand musical reception was given last Thursday evening at the residence of Mr. Reeves, the architeet.

Miss Louisa Marchetti sang the grand duo from Norma. Prof. Gardner played the mezzo soprano part on his violin, Mrs. Sellenscheidt accompanying on the piano. Then Miss Marchetti sang the "Last Rose of Summer," in Italian, and the applause came in raptured concord. Signor Modini sang a beautiful tenor solo, "Tell Me Not Good-by," by Millard. Miss Gertie Reeves sang several songs. Prof. Gardner played several violin solos, Mrs. Sellenscheidt accompanying. Prof. Wilde also played some duets with Prof. Gardner.

A FAREWELL PARTY.

About 20 couples congregated at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Pedgrift, East Twelfth street, Thursday evening, to attend a party given in honor of Mrs. William Paple and Miss Polly Rasch, who leave Los Angeles for a two years' sojourn in Europe. Among those present were Mr. and Mrs. Einstein, Mr. and Mrs. William Paple, Mrs. Charles Hawksford, Mr. and Mrs. McMillan, Mr. and Mrs. Golding, Mrs. E. Wilson, Mr. and Mrs. J. Pedgrift, W. J. Warden, Fanny Leachman, E. C. Van Buskirk, Minnie Pearly, W. C. Wolfe, Polly Rasch, A. J. Fruhling, Bessie Van Buskirk, Robert Rasch and Emma Volkman.

THE "C.C.C." CLUB.

Friday afternoon the "C.C.C." Club held its first meeting at Miss Perry's home, on Pearl street. Miss Mamie Chanslor was elected president, Miss Flora Culver vice-president. Miss Florence Perry secretary, Miss Ida Menefee treasurer, Miss Clara Carraw critic. The luncheon served was delicious indeed, and the young ladies proved that society girls can cook when they choose. The following members compose the club: Miss Charslow, Miss Culver, Miss Perry, Miss Menefee, Miss Carron, Miss Bonebrake, Miss Hiller, Miss Veazie, Miss Kurtz, Miss Tufts, Miss Jordan, Miss McCarthy, Miss Smith and Miss Stout.

THE HILL CLUB.

The Hill Club, which was organized a short time ago for the study of music, held a meeting in the Ellis College Hall last Friday. The members spent a most enjoyable evening. The following ladies and gentlemen contributed to the evening's enjoyment: Mr. Barnham and Miss Kate Kimball, solos; Mrs. Damerion, Mr. H. Clay Eastman, recitation; Mr. Williams, violin; Miss Ada Ellis, solo; Mrs. Parsons and Miss Betts, duet. The exercises were terminated by a dance. Mrs. Ellis, Miss Witmer and Miss Anna Fields were the acting committee and received the guests.

Last Wednesday Mrs. Chandler of Boyle Heights gave an elegant lunch to a few of her friends. Among those present were Mmes. Caswell, Hubbell, Judge Gardner, Smith, Gen. Mansfield, Perry, Workman, Col. Wheeler and Pridham. The affair was most elegant, and the lunch was greatly enjoyed by the guests.

NOTES AND COMING EVENTS.

The perfect moonlight of Tuesday evening was most thoroughly enjoyed by the Pickwick Outing Club, the occasion being a ride to Alhambra, where refreshments were served at the hotel. The equestrians were Misses Howlett, Bonebrake, Bowen, Rawlings, Wilson, Tufts and Mrs. Fisher; Messrs. Lawrence, Redick, Smith, Cochran, Wilson, Tufts, Nordlinger and Francisco.

The ladies of Unity Church gave a sociable on Thursday evening at the unfinished church building on Seventh street, near Fourth. An odd feature of the occasion was the march on the transfer system (partners changing at a given signal). Song and recitation filled the evening till, at a late hour, supper was served. All the exercises passed off smoothly.

Miss Wise of West Sixth street gave a most pleasant party to a few of her friends last Friday evening.

On Thursday evening a social was given in the Women's Christian Mission, at Morris Vineyard, in the residence of Mrs. D. A. Wagner. An excellent programme was carried out.

Last Tuesday evening the class of '84 of the Los Angeles High School took a moonlight drive to Pasadena, where they were entertained at the residence of Mrs. Jerome Beebe of South Fair Oaks avenue.

Company F, Seventh Regiment, give an "at home" tomorrow evening at Armory Hall. Dancing will be in order from 8:30 to 12 o'clock.

Rather an amusing scene was witnessed on the streets leading from East Los Angeles to Fort street Friday night. Two couples visited some friends on the East Side, and were having such a good time that they forgot all about the street cars until that useful wagon had stopped running. The boys could not stand hack-hire, but they had to get their girls home, and as they did not have the heart to make the dear creatures walk over, they dug up a couple of wheelbarrows and started on the long trip. They reached Fort-street at 2 o'clock yesterday morning. If there is not a double wedding soon, then THE TIMES is no judge of such matters.

Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Graves are enjoying a pleasure trip in the northern part of the State, to be of two weeks' duration. Mr. Graves is one of the wise men who have builded them a home in Alhambra, in which to find sweet peace of mind after the vexations and tribulations of a day's labors in Los Angeles.

The immaterial spirit of Charles Dickens must have constituted a very happy angel Friday evening as it looked down upon the gay throng that impersonated the people made famous in his writings.

Seventy costumed ladies and gentlemen representing characters from "Barnaby Rudge," "Bleak House," "Pickwick Papers," "Our Mutual Friend" and "Martin Chuzzlewit" marched down the aisles of the hall at 8 o'clock, to the great delight and amusement of a crowded house.

Numerous tableaus and scenes followed, taken from the great writer's works, appealing powerfully to the sympathies of all present and eliciting hearty applause.

Dohs's orchestra furnished most admirable music for dancing, the varied [illegible] with pretty and telling effect.

The immortal meat pie was conspicuous by its absence, but the vacuity was made endurable by a bounteous supply of ice cream, cake and coffee, served by the ladies. The whole conception and execution of the entertainment was a glorious success, reflecting great credit upon the ladies who have worked so faithfully to obtain it. The proceeds, which are gratifyingly large, go into the Public Library treasury.

The grounds were beautifully illuminated with Chinese lanterns, making the entire surroundings very pretty indeed. An excellent lunch was served. Miss Ashmead of Los Angeles favored the large gathering with several recitations. Dancing wound up the entertainment.

The Methodist Church of North Pasadena held a very enjoyable sociable at Thomas's Hall, in that suburb, last evening. The attendance was very large, particularly of the young folks. The literary and musical programme was finely rendered, and comprised music by the audience, a recitation by Miss Abbie Mohn, a guitar duet by the Misses Wood, reading by Miss Carrie Hill, a solo by Rev. W. A. Wright, a declamation by Romie Buchanan, and a solo by Mrs. Walter James. The sociable was ably presided over by Mrs. Judge Nelson and an able corps of assistants. After the above portion of the exercises had been gone through with, the refreshment tables were surrounded and kept going until 10 o'clock.

WALDMERE.

San Buenaventura Social Notes.

Gen. Vandever returned from his trip to San Francisco, Wednesday, in excellent health.

Among the many pleasant affairs of last week the mention of the luncheon given by Mrs. S. T. Wells of Meta street, in honor of Mrs. J. R. Boal of Los Angeles, was overlooked in my report. About a dozen ladies were present and all were splendidly entertained.

The Ladies' Aid Society of the Methodist Church gave a very enjoyable social at the home of Mrs. James Carothers, on the avenue, Wednesday evening, netting them a nice little sum.

Mrs. Sheriff Reilley is visiting relatives in San Francisco.

Judge Theodore Savage and family of Los Angeles are in town and quartered at the Anacopa, where they will remain for the summer.

Mr. and Mrs. L. J. Rose, Jr., Mrs. William R. Stone and children and Mrs. T. J. Sifford are camping at the beautiful Matillaja Hot Springs, where they will remain for some weeks.

Miss M. Estelle Kendall entertained a small number of her lady friends at a 5 o'clock dinner party, on Tuesday, at her pleasant home on Trent street. Those present were Mrs. Maj. Finney, Mrs. I. F. Saxby, Mrs. Jennie Goodwin, Miss Alice Pratt of Essex, Ct., and Miss Hattie Holdridge of Topeka, Kan. A splendid time is reported.

Again it is a pleasant duty to chronicle another wedding of two of Ventura's young society people, it being the marriage, on Sunday, of Mr. Grant Falkenstine, of the firm of Bartlett Bros., to Miss Minnie Stuart, at the lovely home of the bride's parents. The impressive words which made them one were spoken by Rev. Mr. Cossett of the Episcopal Church, when the young couple took the noon train for the south, accompanied by the love and [illegible]

Mrs. J. R. Boal, who for the past few weeks has been the guest of Mrs. Gen. William Vandever, left Saturday for her home in Los Angeles, accompanied by Miss Florence Vandever, who will remain for a short visit.

Compton Social Notes.

The people of the new Congregational Church in Compton are making every effort to complete and furnish their new place of worship, and on last Friday evening gave a successful entertainment and festival, at which they took in over $100 from an audience of about 200 persons. The entertainment consisted of musical and literary parts, and the local talent was ably assisted. Prof. Eastman of Los Angeles kindly performed the double duty of master of ceremonies and entertoiner, besides delivering several of his best recitations and readings in his most happy style. After a long and thoroughly appreciated programme the audience was invited to partake of refreshments, and engaged in social converse. The jollifications did not cease until past midnight.

How She Delicately Declined.

[Merchant Traveler.]

"Maud," he said, with a quivering quaver in the vowel sounds. "Maud, three weeks ago tonight I asked you to marry me."

"You did."

"And you said 'no.'"

"That was my answer."

"Two weeks ago tonight I asked you the same question."

"I remember."

"And you made no reply."

"I did."

"A week ago I asked you to be my wife, and you said 'No' again.

"Yes."

"You have had another week to think the matter over, and I called to see whether you had arrived at any other conclusion."

She reflected a moment, and then said gently:

"Harry, I recognize the fact that each time I have answered you in precisely the same way. There has been nothing in my replies, so far, to relieve the similarity." Then, after another pause, she said still more softly:

"Harry, I should hate very much to be considered monotonous."

And Harry didn't wait for any further answer.

The Sun's Congratulations.

[From the New York Sun.]

We salute the good town of Boston. We allow the Sun's beams to kiss the gilded dome and caress the tutelar codfish. We even forgive the statues. If Boston is happy shall we not rejoice? And happy Boston is, blithe as a butterbump, gay as a grasshopper, joyous as a jackass at evening. The Supreme Court has decided that beans are not garden seeds. Garden seeds, quotha! The food of a great, brainful and proud community called garden seeds! Why not call fine old cheese a scent bottle, and legs of mutton dogwood? But beans has or have been vindicated, saved, glorified. Justice is satisfied and the Hub is free. Wherefore rejoice.

Much Relieved.

[New York Weekly.]

Mrs. Society: Mercy on me! Don't you know that man your daughter is going to marry?

Mr. Meek: No—o. I've been afraid to ask her.

Mrs. Society: He's a prize-fighter, a regular tough. He's fought a score of men and half killed a dozen women.

Mr. Meek (much relieved): Oh, then he's all right! I was afraid he was some poor lamb like myself.

RUSK AS A MOWER.

THE SECRETARY WITH HIS SCYTHE CUTS A SWATH,

And Gets Away With His Chief Clerk—The Census and its Superintendent — Southern Democrats and Frauds on the Ballot.

WASHINGTON, May 10.—[From Our Regular Correspondent.] Whatever criticism may be passed upon Mr. Porter's appointment as Superintendent of the Eleventh Census, there can be no lack of statistical ability alleged against him. Neither is there any foundation for the frequent Democratic complaint that being a pronounced protectionist in principle he will make up his report with a view to its circulation as a high tariff campaign document. Even were a Superintendent of the Census so disposed, it would be out of his power to give a political, much less a partisan, coloring to a compendium of the population, manufactures, and various other industries of the country without a gross perversion of figures that would imply a criminal dereliction to duty.

The Superintendent in following directions prescribed for him has really no alternative but to confine himself to cold facts, without interjecting editorial disquisitions or interpretations as to what they signify, or in what way they may be used to carry doubtful Congressional districts. The results of the census are to be taken for what they are, adjudged on their own merits. The Democrats, therefore, need give themselves no uneasiness for fear that Mr. Porter's conceptions of his duty rise no higher than to prepare a campaign text-book for the elections of 1894 or 1896.

Thomas Settle of Reidsville, N. C., is in the city. He is a son of the late Judge Settle, and seems to have inherited his father's legal ability, for, though only a few years above majority, he is solicitor of the Eighth Judicial District, in which he lives, and as a prosecuting officer has shown marked ability. He is a candidate for United States District Attorney.

"I do not know what action the administration proposes to take in the appointment of district attorneys in the South," said he, "but when the numerous election frauds are brought up, and the Democratic attorneys fail to prosecute, it would seem that their places would need to be filled by Republicans.

"In North Carolina the Republican party has been growing rapidly in the white counties, where our principal strength now lies. If we can secure the conviction of those who commit crimes against the ballot we can carry the State. Such convictions are difficult to secure, for no sooner is an attempt made to collect testimony than the prejudices of the people, among whom we would work, close their mouths and every bit of testimony has to be pried out like a rock from a ledge.

"Every possible scheme has been used by the Democrats to prevent a fair election. One favorite plan is to select lists of Republican voters to be challenged. When these come to the polls their votes are challenged, and they are told to step aside until those whose ballots are undisputed shall have voted. Then the polls are closed before the challenged voters can get in their [illegible] nearly 200 Republicans were thus defrauded of their rights, when I know that not a shadow of doubt as to the legality of their votes could be raised."

As Secretary Rusk sat at his desk Monday afternoon his gaze fell upon the workmen engaged in mowing the first crop of grass on the grounds of the Agricultural Department. Something in their movements did not satisfy his eye, and, turning to Chief Clerk Rockwood, he said: "I'd like to go out there and give those fellows points."

"You'd better turn that over to me," responded Maj. Rockwood, "I can mow all around you."

"Not much," replied the secretary; "as the boys say, you ain't built that way."

Yesterday morning as they rode up the avenue to the Department building the sight of the mowers alongside brought to him Monday's banter, and with one accord the Secretary and chief clerk leaped from the carriage to the lawn, and grabbed each a scythe from the astonished laborers and began to swing them in the most approved style. The tall form of the Secretary moved rapidly along a wide swath, amidst the plaudits of an admiring crowd attracted by the unusual spectacle, while Maj. Rockwood more modestly held his own in the contest. But he didn't make good his boast of mowing all around the Secretary. In fact, the latter demonstrated his staying powers by going to the department after finishing his stint and cutting off a few heads with the official guillotine, while the Major failed to show up at his desk at all during the day. It was explained that he had gone to Mt. Vernon.

REGULAR.

USEFUL INFORMATION.

Tilbury Fox, M. D., the eminent medical writer, in his work "Skin Diseases," thus accounts for the pimples so common to the face and neck. Eating too rich or too greasy food, or too hearty eating while the excretory organs are sluggish, causes in most people indigestion or a dyspepsial condition, which causes the blood to move sluggishly, which in turn enfeebles the pores. The result is, that the exuding secretions block in the pores, which inflame, each distinct inflammation being a pimple. Dr. Fox therefore does not prescribe "blood purifiers" so called, but a "dyspepsia cure" to be taken, to use his own words "till the dyspepsial symptoms have disappeared." The old idea was, that face eruptions were caused by a "humor in the blood," for which they treated the blood, giving the mineral, potash. Hence the reason why the older sarsaparillas contain potash. Joy's Vegetable Sarsaparilla follows the modern ideas of Dr. Fox, and aims with gentle vegetable alteratives at the stomach and digestive organs. The reason is apparent why it cures dyspepsia and indigestion, and the pimples and skin eruptions which result therefrom, and why sarsaparillas that use minerals fail.

SONGS AND STORIES FOR THE CHILDREN.

Some Very Nice Letters—A Little Girl Who Hopes Our Boys and Girls Will Wake Up—What Happened to the Fairy.

THE STORY OF THE FAIRY.

Swing, swing, O, poppies golden,
Upon the hillsides olden.
And pretty bluebells ring,
As on your stalks you swing,
For I think along your way,
Does a beauteous fairy stray
With eyes so blue
And smiles so sweet,
With a roseleaf for her shoe.
While round her shoulders meet
Two slender lily leaves—
She wears them for her mantel,
White the spider's silver web,
Makes a bright veil for her head,
And of lovely violets blue
Is formed her gown so new,
Falling down in softest grace
Beneath her dimpled face.
O, she is a tiny thing!
But, don't you think! I saw her swing.
Where the grass grows tall and tender,
On a silver cobweb slender.
But she chanced to slip, and lo!
Almost drowned was she, I know,
In a dewdrop, but a bee,
Flying past her chanced to see
Her vain struggles, and some way,—
How he did it I can't say—
He the fairy helped to climb
To his back; then he bore her—
For this bee, he did adore her—
To her castle builded fair
In a honeysuckle's breast,
And laid her gently there to rest,
With her eyelids folded down
O'er her lovely eyes so blue,
There she lay, her face as pale
As the bliss in the vale:
Then a butterfly drew near,
And he lent a listening ear—
Listening if he might but hear
One faint breath. At length her eyes
'Neath her lifted lids looked out,
And the butterfly and bee,
Happy in their glad surprise,
Gave the softest little shout.
And a spider overhead,
Spinning there his silver thread,
Dropped a line of gos-amer,
Downward from his web to her.
Then a-down this shining thread,
Swift he ran and bore to her
A small slice of beetle's wing,
And a bit of honey dew,
From a rose leaf filtered through,
And the fairy ate and drank,
Turning with a smile to thank
Spider, butterfly and bee,
For their kindly courtesy.

ELIZA A. OTIS.

Well, now, if here is not another letter from our dear little "Bil Nie," from whom we have not heard for a long time until now! We are glad to hear from her once more:

WASHINGTON, May 8.

Deer Mis Otis. i went with papa tu sea thee inaugeration. Mama cood not go, so papa had mi tu Shetland ponies harnessed, an' we druv up tu capitol hil tu the front of the capitol, an' we set thare awl thee while. President Harrison I cood sea over the heds of the peeple, but we cood not heer what he sed. But I've been up tu the White House since, and I've hed a grate deal of fun with baby McKee, who is the darlingist baby i ever saw. Papa sez baby is king at the White House now. I think President Harrison likes little gurls better than Cleveland did, for he alwus has sum plesant word tu say tu me; i had so mutch fun Easter rolling eggs in the capitol grounds. We can run on the grass then, but other times we are not allowed tu step on it. i shood love tu live in thee country whare the grass is plenty, it wood be so sweet to sit on it, an tu lay down in it an look up tu the sky. i was out tu the Smithsonian grounds last week, an i set down jest for a minite on the grass, an a big snake came gliding towards me. I jumped up an screemed an run away, I think it musts are'nt out of the room whare they grow snakes' nests at the Smithsonian. But the grounds thare are luvly, and I like the old buildings tu. Papa sez thay make him think of old English castles. Hev u ever seen them? BIL NIE.

O, yes, many and many a time I have visited the Smithsonian, and admired its fine grounds and enjoyed the many curious things to be found within its walls. It is a grand place to visit, for one can learn there so very much of the wonders of creation. What a vast number of beautiful birds we find there from all parts of the world; what numerous animals, all in thin glass cases, and such a large variety of bottled snakes and tiny insects—specimens of almost everything in the animal kingdom. And then there are the mummies—the bodies of people who lived centuries ago, but which have been taken from the tombs where they were buried and brought to this country and placed in the Smithsonian. They are dreadful things to look at, with thin, long, black hair falling over their shriveled faces, and thin lips, dropping apart, showing their yellow teeth and shrunken jaws. I should much rather be buried in the grave than be embalmed and kept for people to look at a thousand years after dying.

But there are other and pleasanter things to see in this building than those poor, withered mummies. Wonderful things from China and Japan and the islands of the sea, Indian curiosities and treasures from all parts of the world. I wish that every one of my boys and girls could see them all, for I cannot begin to tell them of the interesting things to be found there. It is a very grand museum, and I wish that Los Angeles had something like it. Perhaps she will have some time.

Ah, here comes another letter from my kind little friend who was in to see me again last week, and, for a wonder, I was away once more, for which I was very sorry. But I hope she will come again, and I will give her a welcome warm enough for every time that she has been to see me and failed to find me:

SAN BERNARDINO, May 14.

Mrs. Otis—MY DEAR FRIEND: What has become of all the boys and girls? There were so many at first. I often think how kind it is of you to keep a corner for us; and, you see, it is like everything else—we can't appreciate it. I try to, but sometimes I want to play so badly. Now I want to tell you about my baby kittens. A lady has such a sweet mamma cat that has six little cute babies, and I want them all, but mamma says no. But she will let me have two, and they can play hide and seek together. The lady asked me what I would call them. I said Topsy and Toss. That will do. They are white, with a little gray, and they are alike, and I am to get them the 27th of May. It is a long time yet. I love to read your letters. I like them better than I do us children's. I, too, used to catch the lightning bugs. I used to put them in a glass and watch them, so they would not get hurt by my hands. I did love to see them, and how many there were. It looks like the sky all full of stars. But that was east. There are not many here, if any, or I don't see them. I must tell you how my Harrison rose is doing. It is growing splendid. I think our soil is Republican, for that rose grows better than anything else, and it has new shoots coming out in every direction. I am so glad and so proud of it, and when I look at it I thank Grandma Glover, for she gave it to me. When it runs all over the front porch it will be a gorgeous sight, for it is a beautiful thing now. I went to the Los Angeles Flower Festival, but did not think it very nice, but compared to ours it was jolly. They had a swing all made of flowers, and I guess it was for angels, for it was too lovely for children. And there was a sailboat hid behind palms and evergreens. It looked as if it was intended for Moses in the bullrushes, or for some one to dream in, it was so pretty. Then there was a Rebecca at the well, selling lemonade. It was very fine, and she looked so cute, dressed like Rebecca. And then there was a mountain and a boy going up the trail on horseback. There was a baby-carriage, too, but they could not make a flower baby. At the head of the stairs going to the gallery were two gates ajar, all in green and white and a beautiful doll like an angel. Then there was the rose booth and the register of course, and ice cream booths and a restaurant and a large pillar of calla lilies, and a lot of things, I can't remember all. It was very nice, and Grandma Glover sent up the loveliest flowers of all, a great large clothes basket full. Oh, how beautiful they were. They were roses. She knows what are the best. The ladies went wild over them. They said they were the finest in the hall, and I knew they were. Now I must take my chickens out for a run. I have two dear little baby pigeons. They are so cute, I love them so. I don't think if I get a hundred I will want any of them killed, they are all so nice. Our dear old mountain view is grand, and San Bernardino ain't half as hot as people say it is. Now good-by, and I hope those lazy boys and girls will wake up soon. With best wishes and love, your friend,

MATIE GLENN SHEASBY.

Now here comes a nice letter all the way from Arizona. What a lot of pets our little friend has, and how strange it would seem to our boys and girls in Southern California to go to school where there are so few scholars as where our friend goes.

TACNA (Yuma County, Ariz.),
May 9th, 1889.

Dear Mrs. Otis: As you are not getting many letters lately I will write to you. You said you wanted to know something about life in Arizona. Our schoolhouse is a log cabin. There are only six scholars in our school. Our studies are arithmetic, reading, writing, drawing, spelling, grammar and geography. When I come home in the evening I have to help mamma with her chickens and turkeys. She has got over a hundred. In the evening we read. We take the Youth's Companion and other magazines. I have got five little ducks for pets. I will close now. From

LILLIE MILLER.

I thank you for your nice letter, Lillie, and hope that you will write me very soon again, and tell us all more about yourself and the country you live in.

Our column is full now, and it was all ready to send to the printers when I received a charming letter from a little friend, about five minutes ago, who lives in Ontario, which I am sorry I shall have to lay over until next week, as it comes so late. E. A. O.

LETTERS TO THE TIMES.

Concerning a Patent Bug Poison.

MONROVIA, May 13.—[To the Editor of THE TIMES.] With your kindly permission I would like to ask of the gentleman who holds the position of Viticultural Commissioner for this region, how it comes about that in his exhaustive report of the investigation officially made by him recently, into the causes and cure of the vine disease, that the only remedy suggested for the fungus is a formula which is ...ally be called upon to furnish the ingredients? The said formula is as follows: Sulphate of copper, 10 per cent.; lime, 60 per cent; sulphur, 15 per cent.; "Base of Ongerth's Powder," 15 per cent.

All plain sailing till we come to the last ingredient, and I have searched in vain through the United States Dispensatory, the National ditto, British Pharmacopœia and the French Codex for a record of this delusive pharmaceutical product. No where can I find a trace of either Mr. "Orgerth" or his highly essential powder, and was on the point of writing to our estimable Commissioner for light on the subject, when I chanced to observe this morning in THE TIMES an artistic wood-cut of what appeared at first sight to be a representation of B. Franklin doing the bottled-lightning act. On closer observation, however, I discovered it to be nothing else in fact than an advertisement of the "missing link" in our worthy Commissioner's highly-recommended fungus annihilator, giving the corporate name and place of business of the lucky possessors of Mr. "Ongerth's" very valuable and highly essential pulverulent substance. Comment seems superfluous, taken in connection with the fact that these deadly fungi, in such quantity as to threaten the very existence of all the vines in South California, are developed spontaneously, and that a commission was specially delegated and empowered to investigate the disease and devise a remedy at the expense of the State. The peculiar connection between the company advertising "Ongerth's" powder, and the designation of that powder (instead of its chemical constituents) as one of the ingredients in the remedy recommended by the Commissioner, seems to point pretty clearly to something peculiar.

C. H. ROBERTS.

Vermont Avenue to Be Widened.

VERMONT AVENUE, May 16.—[To the Editor of THE TIMES.] Please allow me space in your paper to inform property-owners on Vermont avenue that the Board of Supervisors granted a franchise on the 7th inst. for a cable or street railway on this avenue to run from Pico street to the Park Station, to connect with the Redondo Beach line, and work is to be begun on the same 80 days from date of granting the franchise. This being the case, many of the property-owners are anxious to have Vermont avenue widened to 80 feet, as its present width (60 feet) makes it too narrow for vehicles. It will be necessary for owners of property to give 10 feet on each side of the street to make the desired width, and it will be to their advantage to do so. A meeting of property-owners will be called on Monday evening, the 20th inst., at Station R, to take steps to prepare a petition to the Board of Supervisors to have the work done.

Vermont avenue is lined with fine shade trees and cypress hedges on both sides for most of the distance which is proposed to be widened, and they will have to be cut down, which is the chief drawback to this enterprise; but the owners of the best improved property have expressed their willingness to make the sacrifice for public improvements. This will give all the properties a chance to make uniform growth when fresh trees and hedges are planted again. The great rapidity of growth of trees of all kinds in this favored county will soon reproduce the agreeable shade trees and beautiful hedges, which we all admire and reluctantly sacrifice when necessary improvements demand. CANCER

CAN BE CURED.

LIVINGSTON, Feb. 22, 1889.

Mr. J. H. Shore—Dear Sir: Yours of the 12th at hand. Yes, Dr. Frances Olmstead has cured me, and indeed it was a miracle, for I was considered past all help by all physicians who examined my face. I was a most horrible sight, the left cheek being entirely eaten away to a depth of two inches, cheek bone entirely destroyed, nose half-eaten off, nasal bone gone. The treatment is less painful than any other I have undergone the past fourteen years. Have been treated by many of the most eminent physicians, amongst them Mrs. Dr. Cook of San Francisco. Under her care eight months. Was in different cancer hospitals in New York. Dr. Olmstead cured me in three months. Rev. Mr. Wilson, Rev. Mr. Lewis and many prominent citizens of Merced can testify to the above facts. See the Doctor immediately. I know she can cure you. Yours truly, W. C. JENKS.

J. H. Shore is now under Dr. Olmstead's care. Lower jaw almost entirely eaten away. Improving rapidly. Any one having cancer can see him at the Doctor's office, 347 South Spring street, rooms 20 and 21, at 9 a.m. and 1 and 5 p.m.

Cheap Land -:- Good Land.

Dr. E. T. Barber of Lancaster, Antelope Valley, Los Angeles county, Cal., offers 30,000 acres of land for sale, in tracts of 20 acres and upward, at $8 to 50 per acre, with liberal terms and title guaranteed.

This valley has raised the premium wheat of the world; sugar beets at the rate of 213 tons to the acre; barley hay, three tons; eight crops of alfalfa in one year; parsnips seven inches in diameter, and is competent to compete with Spain for raisins, and France for champagne.

All this land offered can be covered with mountain water, and has good surface and artesian water, and much of it has a subsoil irrigation.

The railroad facilities are good; the Southern Pacific Railroad now crosses it, and three other great railroads are expected to do so in the near future.

Climate good—no cyclones, blizzards, fogs or malaria.

Antelope Valley is the hope of the poor, a boon to men of moderate means, and a bonanza to keen-sighted business men.

A Woman Without "Things," and a Man With Traps "Till You Can't Rest"—In the Queer, Brown Indian Town of Isleta—Observations and Remarks.

ISLETA (N. M.), May 2.—[Staff Correspondence of THE TIMES.] There is a very common and comforting little idea inherent in all our hearts, i. e., that the world—at least our own small circle—is really immensely interested in all our doings, goings, comings and thinkings; and even if this is not true, those of us who take it unshakably for granted have the best time. Half the fun of pleasant happenings is in the relation of them to some sympathizing but less-blessed soul, and a quarter of that joy lies in the delicate exaggerations and embellishments that the real story-teller adds, either unconsciously or with malice aforethought.

Settled down for a few days, then, in this queer, brown, Indian town, I would fain tell my amended tale to the aforesaid sympathizing souls, as many a mightier one has done, and will do, to the end of time, or, synonomously, THE TIMES.

I wish I were as sure that I would brighten as I took my flight from a blessing, as I am of the converse of the common saying. Brighten is a faded term indeed for the aureole that enveloped Los Angeles. As I "became it by leaving it," and the picture of it that I carried away with me will not be dimmed by the splendors of a dozen old worlds, or as many new, should I find any. As the overland train pulled slowly out of the depot, I felt as if my heart were knit indissolubly there, and as if I only held the raveled end, which should link me there in spite of distance. If "Kings cannot force the exquisite reserve of distance," neither can they divide one from what one has chosen.

By the way, commend me to the pretty custom—my friends have at least—of a gift at parting. The occasion is tinged with melancholy at the best, but when the last words are said, and everybody gone, then to open a little box or a suspicious-looking package and find a remembrance apropos of a still later good-by, brings up a host of warm and grateful thoughts, and puts one right with the world.

Having read a column in a Northern Citrus paper to the effect that "tourist" travel was now the only really proper thing, and having no desire to put any unnecessary dollars into Mr. Pullman's plethoric pockets, we concluded to try that type of travel, and were delighted with the airfulness and comfort of the "tourist" cars, which, in spite of my natural forebodings, were not in the least like emigrant cars, but had the necessities and comforts of a Pullman without its stuffy luxuries. The day of our departure was perfect, as if to haunt us with the most golden memories of its sunshine and its crystal air. In our car were only a gentle and quiet pair of pious eastern folk—returning dutifully but unwillingly to their Vermont fastnesses and coldnesses—and an insignificant young man going where he listed and where nobody else cared. Upon this we had congratulated ourselves in practical fashion by spreading our numerous belongings over about seven seats and taking flying views from as many windows, but during our long wait at San Bernardino, lying so warmly and so greenly at the foot of her noble mountains, a perfect invasion of the hoi polloi forced us to gather ourselves together and console ourselves with one seat and two wounded feelings. For my own part a very little baggage sufficed me, for years of lone female travel had taught me that that woman is happiest that travels with the fewest "things," and that men really do rise up and call her blessed. I had therefore searched and found a small linen shawl-case—irreverently denominated "the meal-bag" by my family—entrusted it temporarily to the cleansing fires of the Chinese laundryman, and into its spick and spanness stuffed everything a mortal woman could, should or ought to desire for many trunkless days, my scarred and veteran trunk going on to Chicago to assure my friends there of my being the possessor of a few clothes, if they saw me emerge in rags upon my arrival from the so-called wilds of New Mexico. Armed with reinforcements in a small bag slung over my left shoulder, and reposing securely, in active moments upon my spine, I was ready to do and dare all that became a woman. Not so my companion! He was surrounded, right, left, ahead, behind and underfoot. A burro load of glass plates, camera-box with its fragile lenses, a long-legged gangling tripod—my especial care and woe—and a heavy valise bursting with age and indignation, was the state of his impedimenta at the start, and how it grew as rocks, spears, bows, idols, blankets, ax-heads, pottery and live stock were added thereunto, would dry up a fountain-pen to tell.

After leaving San Bernardino, we were pulled pantingly up the mountain to the Cajon Pass, from whence we almost tumbled down into the dry, brown valley, getting no more glimpses of green that day except when here and there the Mojave River comes to the surface to encourage a hardy group of cottonwoods, or to serve the needs of some lonely little household. As the sun sets we seek the platform of the last car, and watch the light as it slowly fades from gold to red, and then to a sorrowful purple, and when the stars are out and the night air chill we return to the stern comforts of the tourist to find the porter making up beds with a determined air that there is no resisting. The very people that have all day sent him hither and thither on thankless and unrewarded errands now quail at his glance, and by the time he has brusquely demanded "berth-check, sah," are entirely dumb and crawl meekly into the place appointed, and are seen no more until the same dark Nemesis routs them out a good two hours before any possible breakfast.

I am not at all sure that in my next leisure moment—say a year from to-day—I shall not formulate a set of rules for the conduct of sleeping-car passengers, which I shall modestly request the railroad companies to frame in white and gold and display conspicuously, especially in the ladies' dressing-room. The first of these rules in the largest-sized type shall be, "Be Reasonable," and the remaining rules shall be merely explanatory.

Our breakfast station was at The Needles, where we were due at the respectable hour of 7, but two of my neighbors having arisen at 5 and seated themselves opposite my berth, I was fain to flee from their early inanities to the platform, where the breeze yet bore upon its wings the freshness of morning. At The Needles, though the day was new, and the morning well aired, there were strong hints of fierce heat to come, and we therefore gave up a proposed visit to the little huts and ingenious woven granaries of the Mojave Indians there and went directly to Peach Springs, the station for the stage line to the Grand Cañon of the Colorado.

The greater part of the desert had been crossed in the night, but between The Needles and Peach Springs we were still riding through that strange country, so lonely and yet so full of a myriad lives, from the fat and querulous prairie dog that burrows into the earth and the shy conejo de Jack that skims its surface, to the golden butterfly that rejoices in the heat, and seems to verily become the ethereal spirit of its yellow flowers. All about are the Yucca palms, that seem dreaming forever of

"Some distant pine tree Far in a northern land,"

and the young stalks of the palmilla, covered with their smotheringly-sweet blossoms, like exaggerated lilies of the valley, next to the gray ghost of a dead one, leaning pallidly to one side. Then, when this becomes but "a flat delight," the eye can gratefully follow the sloping rise of the ground up to the shoulder of the mountains with their distorted knob-like tops, or sharp, blue points, piercing a bluer sky, and bent over by long, delicate lines of cloud or high-piled cumuli, from which bits of detached fleeces go sailing off like cloud ships on an ocean sky.

Wooded and softly-rounded hills have a charm of their own, domestic and cheerful, but these wonderful peaks, bare and severe in their outlines, but hiding the very secret of color in their hollows, take the imagination captive today, as they did when first human eyes gazed upon them, since they were left to cool from the great seething of unnumbered years ago, when the warm, brown bosom of Mother Earth was torn with the horrible angina of her volcanic age. With the panorama inclosed by the car window, the idiosyncrasies of our traveling companions, and an occasional page of the sun-witnessed sorrows of Mrs. Rives-Chanler's last heroine, the morning hurried swiftly enough away, and by 2 o'clock we were dislodged at Peach Springs and being comfortably taken care of by Mr. Seeken, whose guests we were to be while there. LETTERS TO THE TIMES.

Wilson's Peak and That 40-inch Lens.

SIERRA MADRE, April 29.—[To the Editor of THE TIMES.] Is it not worth THE TIMES' while to publish the facts about the Wilson's Peak observatory? It seems to be the policy of the local press to mislead the public, and to allow the impression to get abroad that the present work on the peak is being done by the University of Southern California, or by the United States Government, or both, and that it is only a question of a short time before a permanent and immense building is erected and the much talked of 40-inch lens and telescope is placed in position; that a wagon road to the peak will be built practically over night, etc. Now, as a matter of fact, Harvard College is placing on the peak for purposes of its own a 13-inch telescope in a temporary building only designed to remain until November 1st at the latest, when the telescope will be taken down and removed to Peru. When this telescope goes, so will in all probability go all thoughts and ideas of a 40-inch lens. There is a "lead" for THE TIMES to work on. Let THE TIMES get at the truth, and see if the writer is misinformed or not. At any rate let us have a consistent, straightforward story, and no more misleading and foolish statements. Yours, TRUTH.

The Maine "Idee."

REDLANDS, Cal., May 14, 1889.—[To Editor of THE TIMES.] Are you aware that the eastern press is so crowded with matter relative to their own interests that they haven't room to publish a letter from one of their former citizens pertaining to life in Southern California. If you are not aware of that fact please carefully read the following:

"LEWISTON (Me.), May 1st.

"Dear Sir: We received your MSS., but could not make room for it in our columns. We are crowded with Maine matter.

"LEWISTON JOURNAL."

I presume the manuscript which they received gave a good report of our "Sun-kissed land;" hence the above apology. Yours truly,

Religion in English Schools.

[London Times.]

The following were recently among the written answers in examinations on the scriptures by Her Majesty's Inspectors of Schools:

"Who was Moses?" "He was an Egyptian. He lived in a bark made of bullrushes, and he kept a golden carf and worshipt braizen snakes, and he het nothin but quahles and manner for forty years. He was kort by the 'air of his 'ed while ridin' under the bow of a tree, and he was killed his son Abslon as he was hanging from the bow. His end was peace."

"What do you know of the patriarch Abraham?" "He was the father of Lot and had tew wives. One was called Hismale and tother Haygur. He kep wun at home and he hurried the tother into the desert, where she became a pillow of salt in the daytime and a pillow of fire at nite."

"Write an account of the good Samaritan." "A certain man went down from Jerslem to jeriker and he fell among thawns, and the thawns sprang up and choked him. Whereupon he gave tuppins to the hoast and said tak care on him and put him on his hone hass. And he passed by on the hother side."

A New Thought Is Born.

[Milwaukee Wisconsin.]

The event of our constitutional centennial is not likely to produce anything of a literary or oratorical kind comparable with the poem of Whittier, read in New York yesterday. In masterful strokes as strong as they are few, and the stronger being few, he pictures the dream of the ages—the experiment of self-government: "Freedom's great experiment," he calls it—which at last seems realized in our Republic.

In true poetry and with deep philosophe he explains both the cause and consequence of success in the experiment, by this one unapproachable line:

"power is but a trust,
And rule alone which serves the ruled is just."

In that brief sentence is given to men a new thought. In it is embodied the fundamental secret of a sustained popular Government.

WOMAN AND HOME.

THE DAYS OF THE LONG AGO AND OF TODAY.

Some Nice Breakfast Dishes—Manners of the Twentieth Century—The Quaint Old Days That Are Gone—Gracious Hospitality—A Charming Tea.

I attended a lovely little tea and reception one day last week, where there was no stiff formality, but free, gracious and hospitable courtesy. It was a pleasant gathering of ladies, such as society enjoys, with its bits of small talk, its interchange of pleasant thoughts and friendly greetings, and it was especially charming for the perfect at home feeling which the hostess imparted to her guests. Everything, to the beautiful lilies, pinks and roses, seemed to say, "You are welcome here." Ah, there are ways and there are ways of extending hospitality, but the right way is beautiful and makes the world better.

In giving such receptions there are several things to be considered. First of all, aim to bring together, as far as possible, those whose tastes are congenial and who share alike in culture and attainments. How many pleasant memories gather about such meetings, and how many delightful friendships are formed oft times from such chance acquaintanceships.

Those who know Mrs. Hayes, the wife of our ex-President, intimately, declare—so cordial and so sincere is she—that she possesses the faculty to a wonderful degree of making each guest feel that he or she is the person whom she is most delighted to meet. Said a friend of mine who received an invitation to the White House while she was its mistress: "She came to me as I entered, and extending her hand she made me feel, so cordial was her smile, and so pleasant her greeting, that I was the very individual she was most longing to see and welcome." With this feeling awakened, you draw out from your guests the very best that is within them. And an individual needs to be on good terms with himself to be companionable to others.

I object to flattery, but I do like outspoken kindness, and that considerate attention and courtesy which mark the true gentleman and lady. A generous, helpful word of appreciation is the best lever with which to lift up the race. I believe that there are hundreds who fail of recognition just for want of it. I have been brought up myself many a time from the valley of Despondency by an appreciative word generously uttered. Ah, we need to cultivate interest in, and sympathy with, our fellowmen. To live utterly independent of those about us is an impossibility. We each of us form one link in the great chain of humanity, and if the links be broken the chain will be weak and worthless.

These reception teas, now so much in favor in society, take the place of the old-fashioned teas of our grandmothers, and are hardly more formal than they, but on the whole must be much more delightful, for our friends can come and go as it pleases them, and we can gather about us during the hours designated a larger number of our society acquaintances. How quaint to us now seem the old-time receptions in the best society in country towns and villages a half a century ago. A lady from the East was not long ago rehearsing in my hearing the manner of invitations 40 years ago in the pretty New England village where she lived. Said she, instead of the neatly-engraved or written note of invitation now used, my mother, who moved in the best circles of our village society, would, after having decided upon giving a tea, make out her list of invitations, and then she would send me out to extend them verbally. I remember the formula as well as if it were yesterday. I would put on my best dress, go to the house of the to-be-invited guest, and after having dropped a courtesy would say, as mother had instructed me: "Mrs. Blank, mother sends her compliments to you, and would be pleased to have you spend the afternoon and take tea with her on Thursday." The same formula was gone through with at each house to which I was sent, and those invited would send their verbal acceptance by me, or else give their reasons, with regrets for declining."

"That is the way," said she, "that in those little eastern towns invitations were almost universally sent out a half century ago. That, of course, was almost a quarter of a century before the days of letter-carriers, and when the postoffice did not play so important a part in the economy of our civilization as now.

I doubt if there be a village in the country today where such primitive measures are resorted to in the extending of invitations. But underneath these primitive methods what warm heats beat, and how sincere was the invitation extended.

Of course this is but a picture of country hospitality. Invitations, even in those far off old days, were not given without due ceremony in the fashionable circles of the larger cities. Punctillious etiquette is by no means a thing of modern invention, although it has, in many respects, been improved upon since the days of our grandmothers. But as the world advances the social methods of the present may appear as quaint to the society of the twentieth century as do those which obtained in the early part of the nineteenth to us of the present. But so be it that the spirit of kindness and gracious hospitality underlies our social life. What matters it if the future smiles at the past and shrugs its shoulders at it?

NOTES.

Let me give you here some suggestions for easily-prepared breakfast dishes. The ham, cooked as suggested, is nearly as good cold as when hot, and cold slices of it will be excellent with potatoes prepared as directed and will be found exceedingly appetizing.

Potato Rolls.—Take one cup of cold mashed potatoes; add two tablespoonfuls of milk, half a teaspoonful of salt, a saltspoon of pepper. Put into a saucepan and stir over the fire until the potatoes are thoroughly heated. Beat until light and smooth; then add three well-beaten eggs; do not separate the eggs. Put an ounce of butter into a perfectly smooth frying-pan; when hot turn in the potatoes and flatten them perfectly even all over the pan. Cook slowly until the potatoes are hot, smooth and nicely brown; then turn one half over the other and serve on a heated dish.

Baked Ham.—Soak the ham over night in sufficient cold water to cover it. Next morning wash and trim it neatly; put it in a large kettle; cover with cold water; add a tablespoonful of molasses and a quart of cider; cover the kettle and cook slowly 15 minutes to every pound of ham; when the ham is done take it out, remove the skin and place it in a baking pan, fat side up; brush it over with beaten egg, sprinkle lightly with bread crumbs, add a pint of cider to the pan, and bake in a moderate oven one hour, basting once or twice with the cider. Serve hot, cut in very thin slices.

Bread Omelet.—Put a half pint of stale bread crumbs into a half pint of milk, and soak twenty minutes. Separate four eggs and beat both yolks and whites until very light. Add first the yolks to the milk; then a half teaspoonful of salt; mix well, and stir in carefully the well-beated whites. Put an ounce of butter in an omelet pan; when hot turn in one-half of the bread mixture; cook and shake the same as a plain omelet. When thoroughly done through, and a nice brown, spread quickly and thickly with marmalade or jam. Fold one-half over the other; turn out on a heated dish; dust quickly with powdered sugar, and serve at once. Fry the second half the same.
